Faculty Rejects DoD Research Phase Out

By ALAN J. WAX

The Faculty Senate, in a 61-45 vote yesterday, defeated a proposal that would provide for a phase out of all Department of Defense research at Stony Brook.

The defeated resolution was originally introduced by Dr. Michael Zweig (Economics), who demanded a vote by at will of all DoD contracts, grants, and all other commitments to the Department of Defense on the Stony Brook campus.

The vote on the resolution came after an hour of debate. Had it been approved it would, however, have had the effect of an advisory resolution to the Administration. Herbert Weisinger, dean of the graduate school, disputed the notion of the student protest (Physics), chairman of the Faculty Senate Executive Committee, saying, "If the past few months have been taken to be binding resolutions." Weisinger is also a member of the President's Cabinet which issued a series of recommendations regarding sponsored research.

During the debate Professor David Fox (Physics) explained his opposition to the proposal, stating, "A small group has seized one issue (defense research) and declared it immoral and all who oppose it, immoral as well (if they do not support this issue)." All discussion was not in opposition to the motion. Dr. Carl Moor (Biology) said, "The danger, in our military-industrial complex." He added, "The issue we are concerned with is that of military versus educational research in this country." Dean Weisinger noted his symbolic support for those who sit in the Library; however, he could not support their motion.

Besides the 120 faculty members attending the meeting last night and yesterday afternoon, there were about a dozen students who were permitted to participate in the discussion without voting. An unidentified student who claimed that he was one of the protesters engaged in the hunger strike, now in its fifth week, addressed the body at the front of the lecture hall. He said, "It should be recognized that this motion is against DoD research, but against the Department of Defense itself." The student added, "The University should immediately rescind all DoD contracts."

Some faculty member felt that the elimination of defense research at Stony Brook would not have a great effect on the Defense Department. Robert DeZafra, an associate professor of physics, was one faculty member expressing this point of view. He observed, "The Department of Defense is not treasuring in its books about this discussion..." (Stony Brook) is a tiny fraction of the DoD research." Stony Brook has received $1,109,297 in support of 15 projects under DoD sponsorship.

On Sunday afternoon a number of students began a hunger strike in support of the demand. They have vowed to continue until their demand that all DoD research be ended is satisfied. Following the defeat of the Zweig resolution, a resolution to establish a committee to study new research grants was introduced and tabled indefinitely. An additional resolution to adopt the recommendations of the President's cabinet, which would have put a limit on defense research research grants, was recommitted to the Cabinet for a two week period so that it may be restructured as a resolution.

The defeat of the motion was introduced at a meeting of the Faculty Senate on April 16, the body recessed without taking a vote because of a possible quorum call. A quorum was, however, present at yesterday's meeting. At the earlier meeting students were not permitted participation in the discussion.

While the Senate met last Thursday afternoon, about 400 students occupied the Library until 1:40 Friday morning when they marched across campus and entered the computing center.

Hunger Strikers Vow to Continue

The participants are noticeably weaker as the hunger strike enters its sixth day. The students say they will continue their strike until all Department of Defense research is stopped on the Stony Brook campus.

Several strikers have dropped out because of medical reasons. One boy was taken to the hospital yesterday where he was fed intravenously. Two others, who participated in the protest, "he had a history of illness and was approaching a crisis." A girl was suffering from severe headaches and exhaustion and finally was taken to the infirmary. Most of the protesters complain of feeling weak, drawn, and cold.

The strikers drink water, and are permitted to have salt, vitamins, an other "necessary medication." "I feel like I can go on for at least another week," said one member.

The spirit of the protesters remains high. One member explained, "I feel that what I'm doing is necessary, or else I wouldn't be doing it. It's just a matter of having enough willpower and getting enough control over your body functions.

The students have been camping in the library lobby during the day and have been sleeping in different places at night. Tuesday night they slept in one of the quad
Teach-in To Make People Aware
By ESTELLE RUSEK

Nixon declared April 22 Earth Day and immediately everyone jumped on the bandwagon (even the silent majority). The people wanted an end to pollution and the population crisis. But most of the people did not ask why these problems exist. This is one of the aims of the Environmental Teach-in on April 24, 25, 26. The Teach-in is sponsored by ENACT, Environmental Action, an on-campus group that wants to make people aware. Why are billions of dollars spent on defense and only a small fraction of that amount spent on controlling pollution? Why are there so few anti-pollution laws and those that do exist are seldom enforced? The teach-in will be an attempt at presenting these problems to the people.

ENACT is starting its teach-in with a "Clear Wipes Clean Up." It starts at the ESCO Plaza at 2:00 p.m. Friday, and it will go around the campus ending up in Kelly-Quad, where there will be a massive clean up. The place seems to be lacking in garbage cases, but not in litter.

People have asked whether ecology is a crisis or a cop-out: the people from New York feel it is a crisis, but many of the anti-war supporters feel it is a cop-out. In order to have both

The Senate will be voting on the 1970-71 Polity budget on Sunday at 7 p.m. in Tabler cafeteria. Controversy was anticipated over the elimination of Spectra and Soundings from the new budget.

Originally, Polity Treasurer Larry Remer had called for a May referendum to decide whether the yearbook and literary magazine should be funded. However, at a Wednesday night Student Council meeting, Remer changed his mind and opposed the referendum as well as an allocation. His decision followed a suggestion by Polity President Evan Strager that Remer should make up his mind and not leave the burden of the decision to the students.

In discussing each section of the budget, the Council and Senate have the options of deleting, adding to, or adding to the original budget, or raising the activities fee. Polity President Remer said that "if the Senate is not willing to raise the activities fee, they must be prepared to make deletions."

Strager disagreed, and he anticipated meeting with various senators to delete the budget.

Strager feels that Spectra should be published, seniors should receive it free, and other classes should pay if they want the book.

Wolfe noted that the budget committees, Senate, and council meetings at which the budget was discussed and publicized meetings. In addition Wolfe noted that that Statesman has informed students of all budgetary matters. So, if a student still does not know about the budget, "it is his own fault, for a meeting was set Sunday morning that all interested people were invited to a meeting."

The budget will be submitted to the Student Council in final form at a meeting today. If approved or amended, it will then go before the senate.

In a separate action, the Senate approved a student initiated commencement. Representative Phil Chin and Vice President Evan Strager are trying to coordinate a "more relevant" graduation, rather than continuing with the traditional one. At the proposed commencement, there would be one main speaker, considered important to the student body, five or six student speakers who will have the floor for only a few minutes each, a major folksinger, and a poetry reading. Strager feels that the speaker at traditional graduation is a poor choice since "the editor of Spectra is felt to be relevant to the majority of the Senior Class." In addition, Strager approves of the idea that the seniors are divided into groups rather than being together as a class. The student interested in graduation would be open to all of the University Community. Any interested students are urged to contact Chin or Strager.

Senate Meeting Sunday 7 p.m., Tabler cafeteria, 70-71 Budget to be voted upon.

Daylight Savings Time goes into effect after midnight tomorrow (Saturday) night, providing an extra hour of daylight during the summer months. Don't forget to set your clocks ahead one hour on Saturday night.
Black College Seeks Home

By ELAINIE SILVERSTEIN

Ivy College Legislature voted Wednesday night to establish black halls into the college with the understanding that displaced students will get priority in the quad of their choice and that roommates preferences will be honored. According to an Ivy College Legislature member the body voted 8-0 with one abstention, after extended discussion within the college, to accept the black students proposal for a black dorm. The black students proposal concerning the proposal was 2:1 in favor of its passage.

The request for a black college resulted from a heated discussion by black students and acting President T. A. Pond, in March. At that time Pond promised the students that several black halls would be established next year. (Because of segregation laws, an entire college cannot be black. A "black college" would probably need some white students living in it.)

The black students continued working with the Housing Office to find out how Dr. Pond's promise could be implemented. They were referred to the Facilities and Resources Commission of the Residential College council, and then told to negotiate with individual college legislatures.

The students preferred to live on halls, and to remain in G-Quad, where many now live. Their first possibility was Amman College. That was ruled out because Amman already had an agreement to absorb students of Gray College, which will be the International House next year. The next choice was O'Neill College, where the Black Liberation Office is already located.

The O'Neill legislature voted last Thursday night against making a commitment in the college. It was felt that too many students would have to move, possibly into H-Quad.

Giving a vote of confidence was the rationale for the black college. Chason stressed, however, that we're really talking about, do we see this as a reasonable thing to do for the campus? Dr. Greer believes that the black students don't feel comfortable. They need this in order for them to gain their confidence as blacks. Lots of people are ambivalent about whether there should be a black college. And, he commented, if people believe the direction we're headed in is the right one.

The proposal came about so late in the year, room selection, which was to have begun last week, has been delayed until May 4 to 8 to give the negotiations more time.

Quiz Departments on Help for Minorities

Acting on a suggestion from the Equal Opportunity Committee, the Administration has sent questionnaires to all departments asking how they have been able to provide remedial programs and other remedial help for special students and to recruit more minority group faculty and graduate students.

The questionnaires are part of the Committee's efforts to increase the number of black and other minority group faculty and graduate students on campus. Commission members acting President T. A. Pond said that an initial suggestion from the committee was of prime importance in the decision to give prospective minority candidates.

During a meeting yesterday discussed the necessity of impressing the various departments with the importance of minorities. Graduate School

Extensive Rehabilitation of G & H Is Planned For Summer Months

By BILL STOLLER

A rehabilitation program for G and H quads, still under study, is in the process of consultation with representatives of the affected college legislature next week, according to Housing Director Dr. Thomas F. Goreau.

Chason explained that the money involved, $700,000 and $50,000 for construction, will be used to repaint and replace furniture in both quads and replace furniture and rugs that have undergone some rehabilitation as a program, as presently planned, does. The money involved is not basic revenue, however, Chason said, that they had already undergone some impartial examination.

Quad managers and Chason will be responsible for the legislature, asking for their advice, and the cost of the affected quads.

Goreau, SB Ecologist, Dies

Dr. Thomas F. Goreau, 46, Professor of Marine Sciences at Stony Brook, died last night in St. Vincent's Hospital from cancer of the pancreas, a major operation for cancer last week.

Dr. Goreau, resident director of the Marine Laboratory at Stony Brook, New York, a joint operation of SUNY and the University, was born in the United States. He was a student of the world's leading authorities on coral reef ecology.

A marine sciences professor gained recognition last summer when he led a team of scientists participating in a survey of the devastation of coral reefs in the South Pacific caused by the coral bleaching flashlight phenomenon known as the "mortality of thorns." The population explosion of this species of starfish presents an ecological disaster, in which millions of living corals are destroyed and threaten the balance of ocean life in the Pacific. No solution has been found to date to date. Dr. Goreau's report contributed to the scientific definition of the disaster and a move toward eventual solution of the problem.

Maharishi, Alive and Well, Spreads Peace and Harmony

Who is Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, and what is transcendental meditation? After hearing many vague, and more or less incorrect, replies to these questions, the Students International Meditation Society (S.I.M.S. on campus) is refreshing and more than a little encouraging. The Man Maharishi Mahesh Yogi himself is one of the surprises. Although he comes from the 2,500 year old tradition of spiritual masters, he has studied many years under his Divinity Swami Brahmananda Saraswati, he holds a degree in physics.

Black Art Festival Planned For Weekend

The black students of Stony Brook plan a weekend of culture and entertainment for the University and outside communities. The festival will include a wide range of activities such as theatre performances, concerts and fashion shows.

At 7 p.m. on Friday, the Black Gold Dancers, an on campus group, will perform in the Student Union ballrooms. They will be followed by the theater group Black and White. Under the Skin, a Harlem group, present two shows from a February, show here when they were still known as the Soul and Latin Theatre.

OUNTING down the evening, the music group, 64, will take the stage at 11 p.m.

A poetry reading by Bonnie Bench and Akita Mohammed Tovas will open the Saturday portion of the festival at 7 p.m. in Lecture Hall 100. Abodeham, "the last of the poets, will also be in attendance. From Africanism and the black arts, Mr. and Mrs. Supriya Dhabhar will talk about the black revolution.

The evening events at the Union will include a fashion show beginning at 7 p.m. and a 9 p.m. concert with Alice Coltrane, featuring Joe Henderson. "The Third Rail" group will perform at a party in G-Quad Saturday night.

A "Rights of Spring Festival" Sunday afternoon will include a fashion show and a lesson outside G-Quad. Shops from New York City will be selling jewelry, clothes, artwork and African artifacts. Black student art will be displayed all weekend in the Union.

A reception desk will be established in G-Lobby for all those needing additional information during the festival.

SANSIRISHI SAYS OF transcendental meditation that "However we may be, we may achieve tranquility of mind immediately. It offers increased energy, self-confidence and stability, ability to adjust to the fast pace of modern living and full self-realization. Since the system of meditation is an easy, natural technique for refining the nervous system by directing the attention inward toward the subtle levels of the unconscious mind, and involves an religion or cultural practices (such as strange diet or posture, vows, concentration or self-discipline), Maharishi envisioned it as a method capable of bringing about universal harmony and peace."

This can be achieved only through the development of tranquility and harmony within each individual, which he knew could be attained anywhere, through a few minutes of daily transcendental meditation.

In 1965 Maharishi began his world-wide mission by inaugurating the Spiritual Regeneration Movement (S.R.M.) at Madras, India. Since then a chain of centers has been established in the key cities of all the countries of the free world.

The Students International Meditation Society, the sister organization of S.R.M. has grown, until it now has branches at numerous universities both here and abroad.

Meditation Research

While some see the enthusiasm for the technique, and the rapidly improved living patterns of those who meditate justify the results described by Maharishi's claims for his unique method, the results of research into the physiological and biochemical changes, which reflect the changed state of the practitioners' nervous systems, impress even skeptics with the fact that something is happening. What is this something? The major states of the nervous system that have been suggested up to now are wakefulness, deep sleep and dreaming. (Kleitman, Sleep and Wakefulness, 1957). It now appears that the human nervous system acquires what may be called a "transcendental" state during which strains and stresses accumulated on the time system itself are relieved; that it achieves this relief more efficiently during transcendental meditation than during other forms of sleeping and that persons who have meditated for a short time have produced some of the changes observed of Zen masters after more than 20 years practice.

Recent research on transcendental meditation, reported in the journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (Science, March 26, 1970), led the experimenter to conclude that "... the results seem to distinguish the state produced by transcendental meditation from commonly encountered states of consciousness, such as hypnosis and auto-suggestion and suggested that it may have "practical application."

Among the changes encountered during these experiments were an approximate 20% decrease in oxygen consumption (even less than during sleep), decrease in heart rate, and a slowing of the subjects' brain wave patterns.

The S.I.M.S. group on campus has plans for the first (or in a series of two) free introductory course in transcendental meditation to be presented Saturday, April 25 at 8:30 p.m. in the student lounge. They invite all members of the Stony Brook and residents of the surrounding areas to attend.

War Protests Fail to Arouse Nat'l. Feeling Against Viet

By BILL SEVERE

WASHINGTON—(CPS)—April 15. The national day of anti-Vietnam war action did not bring about any significant national feeling against the war.

There were substantial, and in several cases violent, protests against the war and the use of tax money for it. But the sense of a national movement, felt during the major anti-war actions in October and November, was not present.

At the same time, the National Mobilization Committee, Student Mobilization Committee and Mobilization Committee failed to make this month's anti-war activities very newsworthy. Teach-ins, rallies, student strikes and speeches have become very "old hat" to the anti-war movement, and have been repeatedly stopped.

The major anti-war committee had said this month's protest would attempt to expand the base of the anti-war movement to workers, businessmen, and the committees-at-large. There is little evidence they were very successful. Attendance at the major city rallies was, if anything, smaller and more anti-establishment than ever.

Ted Johnson of the Moratorium Committee admits the base hasn't been broadened in the major metropolitan areas, but says the April protests showed "very much success in broadening efforts in many smaller places." He cites Scranton, Pennsylvania where 5,000 demonstrated and the state of Idaho where 3 to 4,000 demonstrated, if anything.

Perhaps April 15 was a turning point for the anti-war movement. Pacifist Dave Dellinger, one of the earlier anti-war crusaders and Chicago Eight defendant, sees it as one. Dellinger, speaking at a Washington rally of 2,000, said, "The time has come to move from protest to resistance."

The only form of resistance offered in the spring "offensive" was tax-resistance. And the rallies on tax deadline day which encouraged persons to not pay their taxes were a little too late to have any substantial effect this year. Tax resistance also is extremely difficult to implement due to automatic withholding of taxes by most employers. Most of the rally speakers calling for tax resistance did not confront this problem.

Dellinger said resistance must "lead to rebellion and inscription," but must not become violent. Although the majority of the Washington crowd cheered his advocacy of non-violence, a significant portion could not see how continued non-violence could ever bring about the rebellion for which he called.

The anti-war movement has grown conceptually into far more than the issue of "bringing the troops home now." In every city there were major demonstrations, there were demands by significant portions of the crowd to free Bobby Seale, the New York Panther 21, and other political prisoners in this, a country which supposedly thrives on political dissent.

There were demands against the industries that make money on war and ravage our environment. There were demands against the militarism that controls campuses (ROTC and research) and controls the Senate (the ABM and the Pentagon budget). There were demands against the police state which goes wherever anti-war people go. At the Washington rally, there were far more police on the premises of the Capitol than demonstrators, and there were Justice Department agents everywhere in the crowd.

In Cambridge, a branch of Northeast Federal Savings was set aflame by part of a large crowd of 4,000 that smashed windows and set street fires near the Harvard campus. The incident broke off from a crowd estimated at 100,000 which had rallied earlier in the Boston Commons, Boston, as it frequently does, staged the largest local anti-war demonstrations of the April 15 effort.

In Washington, windows were smashed by rocks in at least two banks as motor scooters police chased a crowd of 200 young people around the Dupont Circle area on the sidewalks. The demonstrators, who had marched from the Capitol to the Circle for after-rally meeting, were escorted by police all the way. When an occasional rock or brick was tossed, the cops attempted to clear the sidewalks with their scooters, running over several persons as they went.

At Berkeley, the violence was directed at the ROTC building, a frequently attacked source of militarism this year. About 800 students broke off from a large rally in Sproul Plaza and repeatedly smashed with police in a rock versus club match. One campus building set ablaze suffered $2,000 damage.

At Washington University in St. Louis, where anti-ROTC action has been heavy and consistent this year, 200 students, bearing a rally of 3,000 where Renee Deux of the Chicago Eight had talked, broke 20 windows in the remaining ROTC building (the other had already been burned to the ground) and windows in three other campus buildings.
The Student Senate meets Sunday night to act on the 1970-71 Polity budget. The budget, ... can ration antidotes to the undesirable population. How does this sound as a solution for the "population problem?"

Several amendments to the budget were proposed during the debate. One amendment, sponsored by Remer, would have amended the budget to include Specula and college senator, and, if you care, enough student body's opinion. Originally, Remer apparently took little heed of the entire process and these organizations low priority items, and when it went this far, where it was going to end. The Senate approved the amendment. The plan was to have a student referendum which initiatives proposals. The proposals would be put to a vote of the student body thought about raising the activities fee and funding Soundings and publications, for either a cut in funds or to provide for the "criminal activity" for the police department. In the same proposal, the police budget was increased. The proposal was to initiate investigations of many areas of the campus coordinator to allocate money for campus coordinator will have the ability to authorize sums for any department and now they are trying to apply it to the criminal justice system in one state. The proposal was presented by John I. Chaiken, public relations director at Stony Brook. The proposal is to have an "intermediate or high tech" department and the Rand Institute of New York will be set up and coordinated by the Rand Institute. The Rand Institute has stated that children's health and welfare are being set up and coordinated by them. Rand Institute is a joint venture between the N.Y.C. Rand Institute and the Rand Institute of New York. The proposal is for the Rand Institute to provide policy-relevant research activities described . . . The following letter was written last Sunday by those persons fasting Ed.)

Letter to the Editor:

Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday morning of last week saw the display of frustration and anger of a few, and the disinterest or lack of concern among many on this University. That phantom of student action, the hunger strike, re-emerged, once more for a brief visit, made its appearance replete with the same spectacles of the computer center takeover, and then re-emerged on the scene, spreading terror of somehow unexpected court injunction.

As of today, Monday, April 20th at noon, hunger strike is continuing in the library. Those of us who are participating know that you've important, important, first floor lobby without violating the injunction. If you decide to leave the regular closing hour, will continue this strike on the library mail until the library closes. No harm can come to us.

We have come to the conclusion, after the events of last week, that the following observations are of absolute importance:

1. that for most students on this campus, discriminations and the game of top executives and their excitation or hostility to the outside world is the most important issue. Our strike is really and truly, the most important issue.

2. that together with these students, there is a disgust within those individuals at the University in dealing with this strike.

3. that the only way to be really effective is to continue this strike indefinitely until one of two things happens—either the Department of Defense continues to be actively supported by members of this University are recruded or those members leave this University, or until such time as this University is closed down.

As a result of these observations, we urge you to consider the following:

1. to make sure that you don't participate in the strike, if you are at all possible. We know of certain students who are participating, and we hope you will consider the following:

a) that for most students on this campus, discriminations and the game of top executives and their excitation or hostility to the outside world is the most important issue. Our strike is really and truly, the most important issue.

b) if you feel that you can only participate in the strike, you must be aware of the fact that you will not see the library, you are only fluid to be drunk is water.

If you would join us, we are observing the following rules and ask that you do likewise:

a) this action is one of non-violent resistance, and force of any kind will not be used;

b) no solids of any kind will be eaten, and the only fluid to be drunk is water (vitamin pills, if necessary, are optional and may be taken);

c) no one will leave the library during the lunch hour.

To the Editor:

We continue this strike on the campus. The hunger strikers are going to continue this strike until one of two things happen: the strike will continue until one of the following occurs:

1. that the Department of Defense is forced to withdraw from the University.

2. that the strike is continued indefinitely until one of the following:

a) that for most students on this campus, discriminations and the game of top executives and their excitation or hostility to the outside world is the most important issue. Our strike is really and truly, the most important issue.

b) the University is forced to withdraw from the Department of Defense research.

To the Editor:

Mr. Remer's proposed budget is a choice to eliminate the funding of DoD research on this campus, a choice which can fund two different types of information to house their troops throughout the world. Does not mean that the military will not be able to use this information to house their troops throughout the world in the case of Soundings this is only that the military can use this information to house their troops throughout the world. In the case of Soundings this is only that the military can use this information to house their troops throughout the world.

To the Editor:

We are few in numbers, and although we encourage others to join us, we do not expect it in the '70s. We are hoping to impress this University with the seriousness and complete determination of those students who might be viewed as the 'silent majority,' our strike within the building. We will continue this strike indefinitely until one of two things happens—either the Department of Defense continues to be actively supported by members of this University, or those members leave this University, or until such time as this University is closed down.

We have come to the conclusion, after the events of last week, that the following observations are of absolute importance:

1. that for most students on this campus, discriminations and the game of top executives and their excitation or hostility to the outside world is the most important issue. Our strike is really and truly, the most important issue.

2. that together with these students, there is a disgust within those individuals at the University in dealing with this strike.

3. that the only way to be really effective is to continue this strike indefinitely until one of two things happens—either the Department of Defense continues to be actively supported by members of this University are recruded or those members leave this University, or until such time as this University is closed down.

As a result of these observations, we urge you to consider the following:

1. to make sure that you don't participate in the strike, if you are at all possible. We know of certain students who are participating, and we hope you will consider the following:

a) that for most students on this campus, discriminations and the game of top executives and their excitation or hostility to the outside world is the most important issue. Our strike is really and truly, the most important issue.

Concert Preview

Coming to the Fillmore North
by HANK TEICH

As concerts get squeezed into every remaining weekend, Stone Brook rapidly begins to look like the North Shore Annex to the Fillmore. And now that we are no longer concert starved, we can afford to be selective as to where we spend our time listening.

Ralph Gleason has called Julian "Cannonball" Adderley the "most important and most exciting alto sax player in jazz today... If you want to hear a definition of jazz, go hear Cannonball." Adderley got his name not from his propulsive style, but from his appetite; a friend saw him wolfing down steak and nicknamed him. Cannonball, which got turned to Cannonball, Hentoff has said that Cannonball "so obviously wants the listeners to understand and like what he and his men are doing that he created an unusually friendly and good humored attitude in a club." Sounds good—hear the Cannonball Adderley Quintet Sunday night.

Once titled Chicago Transit Authority (CTA), Chicago will be performing here on Tuesday night with the Allman Brothers Band. Chicago is a lot like the Fillmoe North and indeed, GP-8 on Columbia—Chicago Transit Authority is a crackerjack album. Their recent second double album doesn't seem as tasty for some reason. The music is satisfying, heavy and honest, and in concert they really shine. Except for the only modest guitar work, Chicago bears no relation to the bright lights city from which they get their name. They're really good. Duane Allman, lead guitarist and vocalist of the Allman Brothers Band, used to be the Steve Cropper of Atlantic records. (Cropper is the studio lead guitarist for all of the Stax vocalists, and with Booker T. and the MGs.) Allman has backed Wilson Pickett, Aretha, Arthur Conley and Clarence Carter at one point or another. Now, he and his brother Gregg have a band that includes Butch Trucks (drums), Jai Johanny Johanson (guitar) and Berry Oakly (bass). Johanson also performed with Atlantic artist Otis Redding, Percy Sledge and Joe Tex.

The Allman band seems to be another white blues band that is a bit better than most for two reasons. The choice of material is such that you don’t feel that they are desperately trying to imitate black style, nor that they sound “way off.” And Allman’s slide guitar is rather distinctive and mature.

THE CEMENT FILLED, CHICAGO’S BURG, MONOLITH ACHIEVED, COOKING AS A REFRIGERATOR’S MEAT TRAY, FRIENDS AS THE SPHINX CINEMA 100 presents a film that reveals a deepest heart of gold

The Two of Us—a film by Claude Berri, starring Michel Simon and Alain Cohen.

The Two of Us envelops you like grandpa did when he lifted you up in his arms to the sky. It is the apple pie grandma made that gifted forth with delicious sloppy, apple all over your face. It is the weariness, met with the weariness with which you talk about childhood, unafraid to show, but gleaming with a smile all through it. It is a quiet film that walks your past like strolls with grandpa, when he says a word, but would never stop gripping your hand. You adored him, worshipped every wrinkle and considered every toy he ever gave you something special. You were beautifully crafted, with a performance by Michel Simon that makes you melt into your seat. The Two of Us is very special, just like childhood. FRI. 7:00, 9:30, 11:00

Cherry, Harry, and Raquel’s film by Russ Meyer (Take a Film). This film is the end of an era. Now that he has been lured by Twentieth-Century Fox there is the probable reality that Russ Meyer will never make another personal low-budget bony film again. He is the fat, sloppy, lewd lech who probably slobbers all over himself while he is editing his movies. But he is the pengu’s Buddha. Cherry, Harry, and Raquel will probably surprise you by having a plot, but don’t let that think it will show them bow. Consider the possibilities, and then see your wettest wishes come true. Russ Meyer is all the boy’s school’s fairy godfather. God holds a special place for him, and we’ll probably all follow him there.

The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie starring Maggie Smith, Robert Stephens, Celia Johnson, and Pamela Franklin; directed by Ronald Neame.

Miss Brodie is in her “prime”—which means that soon everything will be downhill. She doesn’t have much to show for her status of “Miss.” With eyes that could melt cutlery, her hands, she draws her “girls” to her like drones to the Queen Bee, feeding them her ideas for their ambition. Giotto is Italy’s best painter. He was her favorite. She let syllables bang in the air until she decided to bring them down. Maggie Smith creates Jean Brodie as a towering radiant Medusa. She rolls her tongue as she speaks, like a rattier before it strikes. She commands center stage or claws her opponents to bleeding patchwork. She has her work cut out for her from a fine supporting cast, especially Pamela Franklin, as a Brodie-accustomed kid. But the film is set well because of the meaningful direction of Ronald Neame. We know his characters only from confrontation to confrontation, only from any life outside of their scenes. He cast saves the film from collapse. Miss Brodie would never allow such slippages. Maggie Smith seems to that.

P.S. Rod McKuen runs neck and neck with Bacharach with his Momento and his solo of the title tune is a plea for ruthlessness.

Baseball Team Stops Pace
As Baker Gains First Win

By MIKE LEIMAN

Crag Baker could hardly have expected to gain his first win as a Patriot when he started Wednesday's game against Pace in right field, but two late Stony Brook runs combined with Baker's four innings of relief hurling gave the Patriots and Craig a satisfying 7-5 win over Pace.

Baker entered the game in the sixth in hopes of protecting starter Steve Kreiner's 5-2 lead, but three Pace runs quickly tied the game. Baker steadied over the remaining three innings, however, battling only his control as he shut the visitors out without a hit.

Pitchee Gen Hit

The Patriots got things off to a quick start in the first when the pitching duo of Kreiner and Baker smashed consecutive singles to produce one run with Baker's shot accounting for the ribby. The Pats came right back in the next frame for three runs as Stu Buckner, Jack Gandolfo, and Rich Levine batted in a trio tally. Mike Leiman drew a pass to load the bases for Kreiner who responded with a sacrifice fly to center. When the ball was misplayed in the infield, Levine came around from second to score.

Stony Brook added another in the fourth when Baker singled home Gondolfi who had reached on an error. Kreiner carried the five run lead into the fifth but Baker's two out muffed of a fly gave Pace a chance to score two unearned runs.

Baker switched positions with Kreiner in the sixth, but two singles, a pair of walks and missed hit led to three runs and a tie ballgame. Third baseman Gondolfo ended the damage by forcing a slow hopper into a double play.

Kreiner Ties

If Kreiner was tired when he left the mound, Baker could not have been more strong. His stuff wasn't that good and his control was off, but that is understandable. Craig entered Wednesday's game after toiling seven innings the day before in a rain-soaked contest against Maritime.

With the score tied at 5-5, the Patriots quickly bounced back. Leading off the sixth inning, the Patriots legged out a bouncer to deep short. He went to second on an error and ran around the bases when it was too late to be the winning run when the shortstop threw away Mike Weiner's roller.

Though Pace failed to get any hits over the last three innings they threatened twice. Two walks put Baker in one out trouble in the seventh, but the Pat hurler responded by nailing the next hitter at the plate to strike out. Then Kreiner raced in and over from his familiar right field position to grab a sinking line drive to end the game.

Pace tried again in the eighth when an error and a stolen base placed the tying run in scoring position. With a 4-2 deficit, the Stony Brook outfield made the big play, first when Kreiner went way back in center to haul in a towering drive and end the threat. Then when Buckner did the same in left to make the double play to end the last Pace opportunity.

Kreiner, who hadn't finished with his scoring, however. A triple by Baker, Kreiner, and Joe Donoso powered the fourth run to end scoring Wednesday's game after toiling six innings the day before in a rain-soaked contest against Maritime.

The win brings the SB record to overall 11-2-3 in the Klaic Conference. The diamondmen next take the field tomorrow morning at 11 a.m. for a doubleheader with Harpur.

Tennis Team Wins Easily, 8-1
As Nordlicht Gets First Victory

By BARRY SHAPIRO

Pollie applause from the score board was heard as spectators filtered over the tennis courts last Wednesday afternoon as the Stony Brook network bounced back from the 'lost weekend' to post an easy 8-1 romp of a rather inept Southampton squad.

The Patriot play was hardly devastating-it didn't need to be. Keeping the ball on the court was the aim of the day—and the Pats found this task relatively pleasurable. After playing a rather lackluster opening set, the Pats were refreshing to go up against players that found it more accommodating to net the ball every two or three shots. The Colonials brought their usual refreshments and a dog nominally labeled a mascot—it was a shame they lost their tenacity because of their dazed way.

The highlight of the day from the Stony Brook point of view was the maiden victory of Jon Nordlicht who netted an easy 6-1, 6-1 win over the win column with a three set win that ended a string of bad breaks that had stalled the Soph toiler. Nordlicht had to contend with his own aguish at his serves which was undue pressure unintentionally applied from these quarters to finally break the school. When

The last point in his 6-3, 7-9, 6-3 victory was registered, an improbable smile crept over Jon's lips. For the first time in two weeks the monkey who had lost 6-0, 6-0, 6-0, was turned over to keep in the match, but badly he was short on tennis finesse. Gerry finally vollied to a 6-2, 6-0 win.

Ken Glassberg is running a contest to see how fast he can get off the court. The smaller, but older, brother romped to another win 6-0, 6-0 to lower his mark to somewhere below 30 minutes. Joe McDonnell went up against the Colonial's Bob Derby. Duffy, another soccer player, was too busy reminiscing over Southampton's 21 win over Stony Brook, to concentrate on tennis. McDonnell playing closer to the form he is capable of won 6-1, 6-1, 6-1. Mike Glassberg had much time to work in his new markets as he smashed Art Cano 6-2, 6-2.

The onslaught continued in the doubles. Glassberg paired with McDonnell for a 'fun' 6-1, 6-2 win over Silbert and Cano. It was no contest from beginning to end. Brian Acker and Bert Klapisch, in his first match of the year came on strong to defeat Schwabach and Duffy 6-4, 6-2. Acker clipped the first set with four straight aces, while Klapisch shared to glory with a fine second set.
