Passing faces
  featureless
and cold;
eyes, no contact,
young hearts
growing old.
Levi Princess
  barren, sexless;
Levi Prince
  a phallic slave . . .
While trees
are turning red
and flaming orange,
yellow, gold,
You are bound,
like books,
to Eaton, Norton, Bic
and the reserve room.

While sunshine
pours upon
the forest floor
like rivulets
of granulated gold,
Your words,
like emptiness,
ignore so many grasses
you've forgotten
how to touch.
While silver ponds
reflect love's moods,
each ripple
on the surface
breaking heartbeats
into rhythms,
passions into rhyme,
the many,
who were once
addicted
to a natural high,
are chained
to Goodyear tiled floors,
and genuine,
woodgrain, imitation,
wood formica desks...
chained by an intellectuality aghast at sensual things...
Touch,
in fields, on paths
in forests, woods
and greens,
Touch hands,
in Autumn, Winter,
Spring and Summertime,
in sunshine, snow or rain,
Touch Nature,
touching hands
to leaves, to stems,
to acorns, cones and fruit,
to thorns, brooks and springs . . .
Touch men,
Touch women,
Touching all,
and in so doing
Hear the touch
in Nature's call.

In Memoriam

Sherman Raftenberg

"We ought to be against a society and a system which attempts to attract gifted intellectuals, the cream of America's budding society, to a college campus where illuminating the mind is of paramount importance and the simple lighting of the campus environment is debated by academicians and politicians and where open manholes are conspicuously overlooked."

Many people and events influenced the production of this book. The people pictured on these pages, however, the most far reaching effects.

Photo quality surpassed any previous Specula. This was due to the efforts of Jook Leung (below) and Peter Levitt (left). Their dedication to the book and their commitment to good quality prints, even at 4 in the morning, was nothing short of phenomenal.

Carl Flotow (bottom right, on right) gave up a good part of his Christmas vacation to teach me layout. I hope I learned enough.

Finally, Carole Weidman (top right) served as the spiritual force of the book. Her enthusiasm stayed throughout the year. Without her pestering, the book probably still would not be published.

Special recognition should also go to Aaron Jarit and Bernie Friedman of Carol Studios for putting up with me and George Geer of Delmar Publishing for doing everything he could to get the book moving.

For anyone who was not mentioned, please accept my thanks.
So that is it, Stony Brook? Four years of living together and this is how it ends.

Someone I've never seen reads my name from an index card. Someone I've never met shakes my hand like an old friend and wishes me luck. Then you dump me into the real world, with no more than an empty diploma case with which to protect myself, and speed away.

Is a pat on the back a sufficient ending for our relationship? Am I still only a number to you?

In these four years we've both grown because of, or perhaps in spite of, each other. We've reacted to changing social structures. We've flourished in the contemplation of ideas. We've become strong by meeting challenges. We've been humbled by the finality of death. We've begun to learn how to live.

You've left your mark on me. Whether it was what I wanted or not seems academic at this point. The changes are indelible. All I ask is a genuine acknowledgement of my existence and a sincere good-bye.

Good-bye

Michael Vinson
