WELCOME TO FIONA GRADY:

If you have seen some one new among us - well you are right! It's Fiona, who comes to our Library from Texas. However, you can't detect any Texas drawl. Fiona is the Bibliographic Instruction Assistant for Janet (who returns at the beginning of February). By then Fiona will really know her way this place of many corridors.

LIBRARY SERVICES COMMITTEE PROGRAM:

A Trendspotting session will take place on January 22 at noon - 1:30 in the large conference room. Bring your lunches and coffee and cookies are "on us".

Susan Lieberthal will report on the work of the ALA/RUSA/STARS task force for qualifications for interlibrary loan operations management. Susan and the task force have been working for almost 2 years to devise guidelines for this position. She will give the presentation the task force led at the Interlibrary loan discussion at ALA midwinter in Philadelphia.

UPCOMING FACULTY AUTHOR - LECTURE + BOOK SIGNING:

Lecture & Book-Signing featuring Faculty Author
Tracey L. Walters
Tuesday, February 5 at 4 p.m.
Javits Room, 2nd Floor, Melville Library

Sponsored by the Africana Studies Department & University Libraries

Review:

“Not many scholars have the opportunity to trail blaze and publish a seminal work; Walters has a just that, and will make a major impact on scholarship in Classics, Black Studies, and Comparative Literature. Walters’ work fosters discussion on how black women have used the classics – as empowering, complicated, subtle; how black women signify off of one another; and generally how a handful of extremely important writers from a local or specific context found universal appeal. Walters moves from Phillis Wheatley to Rita Dove, while also discussing authors such as Gwendolyn Brooks and Toni Morrison. This is a wonderful array of significant authors.”
