NEWS ABOUT THE MUSIC LIBRARY:

(Background) Stony Brook was invited to contribute a page to the national Website of The Science Coalition. Among the recent accomplishments at Stony Brook listed on the Web site is the announcement that the Emerson Quartet, one of the world's foremost chamber ensembles, will join the Stony Brook faculty as Quartet-in-Residence. The quartet mentioned Stony Brook's fine Music Library as one of the reasons for coming to Stony Brook.

"Stony Brook has long had a reputation for excellence," said David Finckel, the Quartet's cellist. "The distinguished faculty at this institution sets an impressive educational standard, and we are honored to be given the opportunity to contribute. We look forward to working with our Stony Brook colleagues to uphold this tradition and break new ground." The Quartet also cited Stony Brook's educational facilities, the quality of its concert halls and music library, and the quality of its faculty and students in electing to come to Stony Brook.

The arrangement was announced at a sold-out concert at the campus' Staller Center for the Arts in January.
