

Colleagues,

The final Provost's Lecture of the semester will be held on Wednesday, November 30th. Robert Bullard will speak on "Environmental Justice for All" beginning at 4:30 p.m. in Lecture Hall 1006 in the Humanities Building. Bullard, Ware Professor of Sociology and Director of the Environmental Justice Resource Center at Clark Atlanta University, documents and exposes environmental racism. He is the author of 'Dumping in Dixie' and 'Environmental Justice and People of Color' and is a planner of the First National People of Color Environmental Leadership Summit. His work promotes political and social equality and strives to protect the lower socio-economic and minority populations in the United States.

This lecture is co-sponsored by the Department of Africana Studies and the Humanities Institute.

Please pass along this invitation to any students or community members you believe may be interested in attending.

- Robert McGrath, Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs
