Fall Photos

School spirit — let's hear it! In this issue's photo gallery, Green and Gold Day heralds fall's other colors, as students new and old make their presence felt at a welcome on the quad and another downtown, at involvement fairs and on sports fields. If you would like to submit photos of timely activities for future issues, e-mail pictures with a brief caption to proffice@oswego.edu.

Easier navigation highlights Web redesign

When pages with a more streamlined design begin appearing this month on parts of oswego.edu, it will represent the next step toward a more engaging college website. Read more >

Walk seeks to unite campus, community

The multicultural coalition ALANA on Sunday, Sept. 19, will sponsor a Peace Walk for the first time, kicking off its 24th annual Student Leadership Conference. Read more >

Olympiad to draw young researchers, artists

Fehmi Damkaci aims to bring high school "Geniuses" from around the globe to campus for five days next summer to show what young brainpower can accomplish on environmental issues. Read more >

Carbon-rich rocks hold clues to mass extinction

The burrows of ancient, squishy animals, preserved in what now is black shale in Upstate New York, may tell Oswego paleontologist Diana Boyer and her students part of a story of marine life extinction more than 300 million years ago. Read more >

People in Action

In this issue, read about a newly certified fellow, a "gem" of a game at a state championship tournament, a biology paper and a volume of poetry — and listen to a sestina and a terzanelle. Read more >

Rice Creek Field Station due for renovations

The college's biological field station at Rice Creek will undergo a $1.75 million to $2 million redevelopment as part of the rebirth of Oswego's science facilities. Read more >

Spotlight

Alicia Grant grew up in urban schools, had a taste of teaching in one and now aims to serve as a positive force for city children — in this issue's Spotlight.
