Please respond to mdoelger@NOTES.CC.SUNY SB.EDU

To: All Faculty and Staff

Colleagues,

On Monday, November 8th, I am pleased to welcome Brazilian neurologist and social psychologist Annibal Coelho de Amorim to campus for the next installment of the Provost's Lecture Series. Dr. Coelho de Amorim is Director of the Mental Health Community Center Program in Rio de Janeiro and his lecture, "Self-Advocacy for Disabled People: Experiences in Brazil, Japan, and the United States" is the 25th in our series on Current Global Issues.

This lecture, co-sponsored by the Office of the Provost, the School of Health Technology and Management, the School of Medicine, the Office of the Vice President of the Health Sciences Center, the Master's Program in Public Health, the Medicine in Society Program, the Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies, and the Charles B. Wang Center will begin at 4:00 p.m. in the Wang Center Theatre.

Please pass along this information to any students or community members you feel may be interested in attending.
