November Photos

This issue's photo gallery reflects the spirit of the coming holiday season, but reminds us that many other campus activities vie for attention: basketball and hockey, flu shots and open houses, a new WRVO general manager and a conference for sophomores. If you would like to submit photos of timely activities for future issues, e-mail pictures with a brief caption to proffice@oswego.edu.

Book charts journey of Indian widow

The latest publication from Distinguished Teaching Professor of History Geraldine Forbes traces the life of a remarkable woman who sheds light on often-unseen scenes of colonial-era India. Read more >

Season of giving magnifies caring on campus

Turkeys and toys, clothing and canned goods, money and man-hours -- the college's faculty, staff and students donate them all, in profusion, in this season of giving. Read more >

Enrollment successes prompt college to review diversity goals

Following a string of successes that made former estimates appear modest, the college will review its goals for recruiting underrepresented students and will step up its already energetic efforts to attract faculty of color. Read more >

People in Action

In this issue, read about the activities of student artists and economists, publications and presentations by faculty and professional staff members, and a professor who won a Love of Learning Award. Read more >

Spotlight

Andrew Friedman exudes a love of life and learning that's as big as his musical instrument of choice — in this issue's Spotlight.

Post-election Poll Results

Will SUNY prosper or suffer under the new state leadership?

The few dozen readers who responded to last issue's poll divided their answers among all choices, with the largest number choosing to “wait and see” how the State University will fare under the new state leadership.
