Second Floor of Library Stolen

Rathbun

There is a growing problem of theft rising to the attention of concerned area college students. RIT, for example, has had problems concerning theft of library books. MCC, likewise, has had similar problems in the library. Also there is a total lack of respect for the buildings themselves. Students have been known to steal a large assortment of items from buildings, placing them in apartments or selling them "hot".

On April 2, the second floor of the library was stolen. The administration considered this "the height of disrespect." A security guard spokesman stated that the time the event took place was sometime between the early morning coffee break and the late evening coffee break. Amazingly enough, the library floor was stolen in broad daylight. One security guard was quoted as saying, "we suspect foul play here somewhere."

We at the Monroe Doctrine have been assured that the mystery will be solved, despite the fact that there was no financial loss. The floor contained only one bookshelf of three year old magazines, and Mr. Nick Hayes, who was apparently playing gin rummy with the second floor sculpture.

The day following the theft, the security guards plastered the school walls with signs stating, "cheaters never prosper." Security assures that although nothing of value was stolen, this is a matter of principle.

Tenure Trouble

A startling discovery recently revealed that none of the MCC faculty really have tenure due to faulty wording in their contracts. Dr. Good immediately set up a new tenure committee comprised of six members of the militant Concerned Students Group.

As a result MCC will only offer one course next semester, five times a week; but then again, sociology is an important subject for all college bound students to study, anyways.

Executive Board Acts

By Patti Cake

The Executive Board met last Monday and acted on several new measures. All were present, although Jim Kellogg wore the same shirt that he wore to the last meeting. Shame, Jim!

First they had to vote on whether or not to pass the wrestling team's request to go to Australia on a fact-finding tour of new wrestling rules. The board voted yes after Fritz von Erich put Pat Madonna in a claw hold and wouldn't release it until after the vote. Meanwhile Mike and Doc Gallagher worked over Dale Hound until he voted yes.

Next the now bewildered and bankrupt board had to vote on other financial commitments. They vetoed 50 cents for the Ida Lupino fan club to hold its annual convention, $1.56 for the Monroe Doctrine to pay its editors $75 for Scott Lindsay to quit writing, and $3.84 for the library to get a dirty book. Then they passed a bill to purchase a 1970 Maverick for Executive Board use. Not lacking integrity, the board members promised to pay the school back by coming to the next two meetings sober.

Next they had to approve the nomination of Steve Find to the Student Court. A complete investigation was called for first, to find out all he's said about teenagers in the last ten years, before he could be approved.

The Board vetoed a move to boycott classes on Spiro Agnew's birthday. After all, it's on a Sunday and there's roller derby to watch on TV anyways.

The board closed their meeting with a prayer, disproving allegations that they didn't have one.

ESOTERIC HUMOR

To the Editor:

Your newspaper is an insult to the literate population. The esoteric humor, the barbs aimed at the fraternity fellows and the other liberal mish-mash has no place, whatsoever, in a college newspaper.

I'm not defending those fine MCC fraternities just because I happen to be a life long member of Gammow Fly, but rather because I find your opinionated articles boring and ludicrous.

Perhaps if you people made yourselves aware of the facts instead of listening to records, then maybe you could report factually on events that take place on this beautiful campus near downtown Henrietta.

Ed Note — We don't think you're a frat man at all, Board, you're too articulate.

WONDERFULEST

To the Editor:

I think that you guys and gals are doing the wonderfulest(sic) job ever by a college(sic) newspaper.

The Editorials are clever, the columns are sturdy except for dum Leo V. Boisner's. I like the cartoons; they make me laugh (HA HA). The whole newspaper sends chills up my spine when I read it. It's really great.

There's only one question though. With you doing such a swell job, the question remains unanswered: How the hell did you get stuck with a clutz Faculty Adviser like Nick Haystack?

Chuck Roast

Ed. Note — We give up, how did we get stuck with a clutz like Nick Haystack?

Religious Revival At MCC

Sparked by the overwhelming success of the recent exhibition of Eastern Religion in the brick lounge at MCC, the cultural events committee attempted a second such experience with a topic even more mysterious to MCC students: Western religion.

For fifty minutes last Friday a Roman Catholic priest showed movies of a MASS held in a CHURCH where part was done in LATIN and the people sat in PEWS and dressed in SUITS and DRESSES. This unique experience varied considerably from the coffee house masses MCC students take in when the V.I. and Club are closed for remodeling.

"It was really something, man," said Andy Kurtthomas, MCC resident hippie, after viewing the 50 minute presentation. "Imagine, dressing

REPLY TO REPLY

To the editor:

I take acception to Tom Mangiliano's reply to Miss Caplan's reply to Steve Fine's reply to Warren Amy's reply regarding Food Services. I feel it is none of his business what she thinks of what he thinks of him. Furthermore, who is he to tell her what she should say about him for speaking about the other him that way?

Sincerely,
Andy Connelly

(Editor's note: See "Gas Bunion" for Ray LaBella's comments on Andy Connelly's comments on Tom Mangiliano's comments on Jeanne Caplan's comments on Steve Fine's comments on Warren Amy and his comments . . . I think).

MUDSLINGING

To the Editor:

I have done more mudslinging and discovered that Norbert the friendly mouse was recently caught in a motel room with Mickey Mouse on a weeknight doing unmentionable things. Meanwhile Donald Duck and Daffy Duck seem to be more than "good friends."

P.S. I'm not afraid to sign my name, may I ask why Spiro Agnew is?

Peggy Bank

(Editor's note: Spiro forgets the spelling half way through it and usually gives up.)

Neuman Club

One of the hardworking service organizations on campus is the Alfred E. Neuman Club. The Neumans hold apartment masses, go to folk rallies, and visit sick (rich) old ladies in the hospital.

Father Connelly has been holding apartment masses lately with a great deal of success. Over at college complex the good Father has held 3,465 masses in three weeks and, since he was already there, ministered at 678 shot-gun weddings resulting from the parties after the masses.

The apartment dwellers have been more than enthused about the apartment masses. They offer helpful suggestions to make the masses more relevant, like using beer & pretzels instead of wine & bread. Father Connelly nevertheless keeps his composure.

Father Connelly also prays for the sins of the College Complex people. As a result, he hasn't slept for ten weeks. But he should be done with their confessions before summer recess.

Anyone who wants free milk and cookies, to meet a new steady, to see proof the sin is not a monopoly of California, or to avoid sitting next to the hold man who falls asleep and snores real loud in church, come to the apartment masses an hour before Father Connelly gets there. They usually wait that long before they straighten up.

VET'S CORNER

The MCC Vet's Club termed its latest witch-hunt a complete success. Thirty-two long hairs were given brush cuts and lye baths. Sixty three men were signed up in the Marines and martial law was placed over the school.

The Vets deny the use of coercion and were surprised that anyone would accuse clean-cut Americans like themselves of anything as underhanded and Communistic as threats.

Tom Menstruliano, club president and chief blockhead, claimed that the Vet's will avoid trite things like the haircut drive on campus in the future. Tom stated that selling guns to patriotic organizations like the Minutemaidmen and tear gas to the police were more in keeping with their service tradition and besides it's a much more lucrative field.

The M-D wishes the Vets the best of luck in their endeavors to clean up MCC. With fine young men like these, MCC will be a place for people to send their children in no time at all.

TAKE A STAND

There comes a time when a person must take a stand, whether it's to give an old lady a seat on a bus or to stick by your guns against the "Creeping Liberalism" that's infecting our fine country and school.

It becomes more apparent with each passing day, that people are using Liberalism as an excuse to burn buildings and go on peace marches. Let's face the facts these student rebels are all alike they're using our country's democracy as a guise for their communist tricks.

The M-D has solutions for all of these problems. To start, we demand that everyone, girls included, be required to have a brush cut. This would make everyone more uniform. Second, we demand that weird clothes be outlawed and a dress code be initiated. Sport coats would be the uniform-of-the-day. We realize that demanding suits at this time would be too radical-oops we mean reactionary. Finally we demand that Latin be spoken in each classroom. We feel that a reviving of this fine language will eliminate the riff-raff, teachers included.

Our demands aren't far-fetched or even very "demanding". Anyone with an IQ of 146 should make out all right. The M-D has also decided that if our demands aren't met within five minutes of their receipt, we're going to burn this damn place down, baby.

Bobbick Shines Again

County legislator Emmanuel Bobbick, always watching MCC carefully to make sure the administration doesn't misuse public funds, has suggested a new economy measure to be instated immediately.

"That college has wasted $36.52 of the public's money on washing towels for gym classes the past eight years," exposed Bobbick. "I demand that the Administration begins purchasing paper towels instead which can be thrown away afterwards and not constantly washed."

MCC Senator Mike Graffone protested vigorously. "The new throw-away towels with no deposit-no return would greatly pollute our already ravaged environment," he warned.

He suggested as an alternative that Phys. Ed. students wait until they get home at night before taking a shower.

Milk Machine Comes Through

Hero of the hour is the MCC Milk Machine, located in the brick lounge, who saved a desperate student from certain suicide.

Broke, hungry, and lacking will to live, Leon Von Castavelli put his last dime in the milk machine so at least the cows would be still employed.

Lo and behold, out came two TV dinners, $500 in dimes, a stock certificate for 800 shares of Xerox, his long lost grandmother, and a copy of the MCC Student Association constitution.

Leon took the latter and went home triumphant and with renewed strength.

Math Dept. Arrested

By Cliff Hanger

Several members of MCC's Math Dept. were indicted last Thursday by Rochester City Police Vice Squad. In a rather bizarre scene, professors Cal Lathe, Dave McNitwit, Tommy Dellacatessa and other "swingers" were nailed for indecent exposure in room 9-100 during the College Hour.

Under the pretense of presenting a lecture (nor is that lecher) on the "Explanation and Daily Use of the Moibus Strip" a full fledged strip tease was taking place. Mr. Lathe's feeble excuse for hiring Miss Blaze Starr to demonstrate the Moibus Strip was that he felt that she could add more "body" to the lecture. Of course no one bought that one and consequently, Lathe and his comrades were hauled away to the County Pen for good we hope.

Fortunately MCC doesn't have a good name or else something like this could ruin its reputation. However, repercussions are being felt in the Biology and art Departments as these people are also hiring professional "exotic dancers" to illustrate their various projects like Anatomy and Figure Drawing.

The M-D has already recommended that the people responsible for this lewd activity be terminated and that the dancers in question be sent directly to the M-D office for further investigation. Let's face it the M-D is the only organization that can get to the bottom of this problem.

BEATLES: ARE JOHN, PAUL AND BENNIE DEAD?

(London) (APU) Rumors are flying here: Beatles Paul McCartney and Bennie Hoffecker are reported deceased.

Apple Corp. and the MCC music dept. have, of course, denied the rumors that these 2 accomplished musicians are, in fact, dead.

"But the fact remains", says Denise Rumpelstilskin, president of the "Find Paul And Bennie Society". "Neither have been seen in Music 101 class for the past 9 engagements" she said, with a tear in her eye. Also if you play Brahms Lullaby backwards at 9500 RPM's you here a voice that sounds like a french horn clearly say, "Bennie and Paul are dead". She continued on tearfully, "Also on the Album 'Beatles Again' Paul has brown eyes, John is wearing a hat, George has on a sport coat, that is unbuttoned, Ringo looks like himself, and Bennie isn't in the upstairs window."

"On Paul and Bennie's most recent album, "Blowin' in the Wind", both aren't pictured on the cover and they both weren't autographing at Mama Lionies Pizzeria where they last appeared 3 weeks ago." And", she stressed, "there was a walrus spotted off the south westerly coast of Greenland, and I was thirsty when they were supposed to have disappeared."

Well, Miss Rumpelstilskin has built up quite a case to say the least. You can't deny some of these startling facts. She has also requested that all further clues be forwarded to her business address at Scots-dale Surry Winchester Court.

By Mike Workhardo

Beatle John Lennon is dead. I have come to this conclusion after a careful study of the facts. Here are some reasons Beatle John Lennon is dead, and why the other Beatles are covering up for him:

1. On their newest album John's head has a hatchet running through it, blood is pouring out, and Yoko is saying, "That's for World War II."
2. He hasn't been on "Lassie" once this year.
3. If you play his latest hit backwards at half speed, you can hear a voice say, "Yoko killed John with a hatchet but we won't rat on her and tell the Pigs because this whole law system is discriminatory and prejudice and corrupt and fascist."
4. He hasn't had a new son in over a year.
5. On his first album he is cleaning his fingernails by scratching his hair. In Lebanon this is a signal that a man will die before he reaches 97.
6. Paul McCartney is only writing half the lyrics to his new songs. He leaves blank spaces after every other word.
7. Their record sales have been down lately.
8. The Lennon sisters have been acting edgy around Jimmy Durante lately.
9. Russian students no longer protest that Leningrad is misspelled.
10. Beatle Paul McCartney told me so from his grave.

DEAD BEATLES?

Beatles John Lennon, Bennie Hoffecker and Paul McCartney are shown on the cover of their last album — "Abbey Lane".

Community College Sinking

By Leo Boisner
Granett News Service

Speaking before 1,000 students and teachers in Room 9-100 yesterday, President Leroi V. Godd announced that the foundations of all buildings on the MCC campus were sinking into the mud due to heavy rains and poor construction methods used when the campus was first built. Although the buildings had been sinking for some time, few if any of the students had been aware of the problem. One or two non-tenured teachers had been heard to complain unofficially about the long walk up to the parking lot and as a result had their Faculty Parking Stickers taken away from them until they "show evidence of a mature and responsible attitude befitting their positions at this university," said Dr. Godd. The guilty teachers have walked to school since then, it was announced.

On a more positive note, Dr. Godd told the students that the administration had taken stock of the problem and was aware that today's student would not be satisfied going to college in buildings that were immersed in swamp mud, and that a positive solution satisfying all parties concerned was soon to come. Dr.

Godd has personally conferred with The Board Of Trustees, and a joint student-faculty committee is in the process of being formed to study the problem. The "Concerned Students And Teachers Who Want To Respectfully Know Why The College Is Sinking, Please" Committee will consist of seven teachers and one non-voting student appointed by Dr. Godd. A storm of applause went up as Dr. Godd, his face flushed with passion, said that this Committee would start right to work next fall, and that they would report their findings directly to him no later than June, 1971.

Things took a turn for the worse just then as a bearded hippie-looking student in the audience pointed out that at the present rate of sinking the last building would go underwater no later than May, 1971. Undaunted by this minor detail, Dr. Godd signalled Security to remove the radical student. Once again students applauded wildly as three Security Guards began beating on the Commie with their walkie-talkies. At that moment the entire Brighton Police Force burst upon the scene, having received an anonymous phone call that SFS members were planning to take over the Brick Lounge. Dr. Godd explained to the police that the situation was under control, and all six policemen left quietly, playfully tossing tear gas bombs at the students as they left to show that there were no hard feelings.

Prof. Porter Stewart, President of the MCC Faculty Association, then thanked Dr. Godd for being honest enough to deal directly with the students on such a serious problem. Even though Dr. Godd had refused to use a microphone and had delivered his entire speech in Serbo-Croatian, Professor Stewart felt that "this is the beginning of a great era of cooperation among administration, faculty, and students, in which we must move slowly, carefully, and gradually, at the same time being sure to avoid undue haste or change for the sake of change."

With a wave of his hand Dr. Godd then left the hall, and drove away in his official motorboat which was parked at the door. Three students also left; the other 997 students remained in 9-100 for their Geology 101 class, which was why they had come in the first place.

"Ransom Notes"

(Latest happenings in the Pop World)

The Jefferson Airplane's newest album, "Hardboiled Radicals" is being delayed because it includes what one RCA exec. terms: "Several perfectly nasty remarks about President Nixon, the Vietnam War and peanut butter and jelly sandwiches."

Release of the album is now not expected until a good while after the Fourth of July.

It seems that everybody who's anybody wants to jam onstage with Delany and Bonnie and Friends. During a taping of the group for appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show, who but the old showman himself should feel the urge to perform. With a tin can and soup spoon, Ed attempted to lay down a heavy beat to supplement Delaney and Bonnie's driving music, but the set ended rather unsuccessfully. It seems that the excitement was too much for Ed and he almost suffered a stroke on the spot. The producers inform us that deletion of this sequence is currently under deliberation.

In an attempt to cash in on the "youth market," veteran Hollywood director John Ford plans to use a rock group to compose and play the music for his next film, which will be a drama of the American Civil War.

And finally, it has come to our attention that yet another popular music institution has gone the path of Cream, Traffic and the Buffalo Springfield: Bob Dylan has split up.

HIJACKED INCENTIVE CHECKS RECOVERED

By R. Stuart Farce

The entire campus was swept with relief as security guard Tuddy Daffballs stormed aboard a hijacked American Airlines jet, recently pirated high above Henrietta, New York, and forced the hijackers into submission by putting out their Havana cigars and telling stale Polish jokes, thus boring them into a state of docile madness and making them easily apprehendable. The plane, loaded with this year's missing scholar incentive checks, was hijacked earlier this month. The foreign speaking criminals, who are suspected agents of presidento Madonnas Regime, brutally captured the plane at cigar point and forced it to land at the newly constructed airfield in the back of MCC, mistaking the area for the swampy jungles of Cuba.

The head hijacker, Melvin Tiajuana Ricciardo, was immediately apprehended shortly after his plane was surrounded by the loyal security farces.

With the plane and its cargo recovered, the enemy agents were immediately manacled and held without bail for parking a vehicle outside of the white lines.

Incentive checks recently recovered from the hijacked American Airlines jet will be available upon request at the plane itself, parked in back of the college (as illustrated). The administration announced that this move would allow distribution of the great amount of checks in the most efficient manner.

The plane will depart Friday morning and those students unable to pick up their checks at the soccer field will find them in the office of the Mainro Doctrine.

Girl's Basketball

Bonnie Pagel scored the winning basket after 47 overtimes to lead MCC to a 3-2 basketball victory over Madame Midge's School for Future Nuns and Seamstresses last night at MCC. "Both schools played defensively," noted Mrs. Mary Michalec, MCC basketball coach.

After the normal 45 minutes of play the score was tied 2-2, all on foul shots. The women officials penalized MCC for utilizing move number 67 and a half twice. Madame Midge's fouls were for abusive language. One girl from MM's spit out, "Oh phooey," after seeing play number 67 and a half materialize.

In play number 67 and a half, in case you're wondering, Pam Keyser does cartwheels all the way from the opposition's court to the MCC court. In the meantime, Betty Rich and Sue Ann Schwab sing the Star-Spangled Banner, Mary Ellen Ford sells cookies to the audience, Bonnies Jones knits sweatsocks for whoever scores the next basket, Carol Dwyer gargles coca-cola until it stops carbonating, Maureen Kane sprays the whole other team with after-shave lotion, Jackie Smith paints roses on the backboard, Dede Murphy takes a deep breath, Marilyn Kellegg, who still has the basketball, signals for Kyle Gillette and Kathy Byrnes to come forward, and when they do, all three grab the cartwheeling Miss Keyser and toss her into the nearest basket. She sits up there until someone can throw the ball to her and she can dunk it.

All this is fine, but dunking the ball is illegal.

The girls close their season against Eddie Meath tomorrow.

BRADLEY DRAFTED BY FACULTY

In a surprise move, the MCC faculty has drafted Bill Bradley from the New York Knicks in an attempt to bolster their already powerful basketball team. Obviously planning on maintaining their win streak of one in a row over the MCC students in the annual Student-Faculty basketball game, the faculty has decided that the only way to deal is by a draft war.

Terms of Bradley's contract weren't disclosed by speculation has it that he'll receive "around $1.50 an hour plus coffee" making him the highest paid faculty member in MCC's history. To make Bradley eligible to play, he has to teach at MCC. This problem was easily overcome as Bradley is a Rhodes Scholar from Oxford & Princeton. He'll teach two courses in Dental Hygiene.

When the MCC student basketball team discovered that the faculty was playing the draft game, they became worried because of a lack of funds.

However, they still have the power of scholarship. Pat Madonna said that the SA would go as far to offer a full two year scholarship in the hopes of landing a good player. Madonna also stated that Wilt Chamberlain and Jerry West were being considered.

True False Test

1. Jim Mabelis is 54 years old but looks younger because he lives on a diet of lettuce and goat's milk.
2. Adolph Hitler is alive and hiding in Detroit but has a low draft number.
3. Mr. Monagan will sing "Games People Play" for his recreation students today.
4. This semester's scholar incentive checks will be in "within our lifetime."
5. George Wallace likes his coffee black.

Silas W. Morton, who studied color changes in iodized salt for 18 years in South Africa, will lecture on "The Need for Iodized Salt in Contemporary Society" in 5-100 today during college hour. Mr. Morton is being brought here by the cultural events committee.

During the past six months Mr. Morton has appeared on The Johnny Carson Show, Family Affair, and several police line-ups. He vigorously defends iodized salt, mentioning that without it, potholes would be non-existent.

Lacross Team Triumphs

Still searching for tougher opponents, the MCC lacrosse club won its fifth game of the season yesterday by downing the School for the Blind, 18-9, in a real thriller. Frank Mangione scored the winning goal with 8 seconds left.

Earlier in a game against the Student Association officers, the lacrosse team lost 1-0, after an introductory speech by the S.A. President mentioning that the game would have to be a short one because immediately afterwards the Student Association was going to vote on next year's sports budget.

The stickmen fared better against The Silent Majority earlier in the week. William Douglas scored 8 goals by waving an American flag as he ran for the enemy goal. As the Silent Majority stood at attention with tears in their eyes, Bill scored all 8 in succession.

The lacrosse team defeated RIT 116-5 in their second game of the season. The Democrat & Chronicle gave the winners an unusually generous write-up, headlining "MCC edges RIT Tigers," then omitting the article.

The season opener was another victory as MCC defeated Irondequoit High, 8-0. Only three players competed for Irondequoit, due to a new ruling that athletes who consume alcoholic beverages will be barred from future playing at IHS.

The stickmen conclude their season with games against Santa Maria's Convent, The Byron-Bergen 4-H club, Jim Mabelis, and the Dick's 43 all-stars.

CAMPUS SHORTS

By Carl Markx

Concerned faculty have recently undertaken a move to fire non-tenured administrators to counter previous action by Concerned Students over non-tenured teachers. This had led to a movement to fire non-tenured students, or those that haven't been here for four years or more. Exempt under this new system are: the MCC athletic champions (of the last four years), 99% of all fraternity members, Norbert the Mouse, Samuel Poppick, Henry the Facist, Students for the Destruction of Society, and half of the food in the cafeteria.

The bomb scare that cancelled classes last semester has finally come totally into the light when on April 1st, two foreign looking men were apprehended by the ever observant MCC Internal Security Farce, for not parking between the lines, having an STP sticker on their bumper, and dressing funny. Upon interrogation in the basement torture chamber (recently constructed under the South Tower) it was discovered that they had planted nitroglycerine in the coffee, explosive gasoline in the gravy, and time fuses in the soup served in our snack bar. Ever value conscious, and never wasteful, the staff served the food anyway and very little difference was noted in the actual taste. The only incidents occurred when Pat Madman sneezed, and set fire to his office, and Bubbles Maybells belched and blew out four rows of seats in room 6-201.

The administration of Monroe Community College announced plans yesterday for the construction of a new high rise apartment building to be used as a dormitory for out of the county students on the site of the MCC Pond. Construction and financing will be taken care of by several fraternities as part of their monthly service projects. According to informed sources from within the fraternities, actual work will start no later than the eleventh of April.

It is hoped by the registrars office that fall registration will be held in the evacuated Monroe County Penitentiary, down the road. This will be done to "bar any unfortunate incidents."

With elections coming up pretty soon for Student Association officers, MCC may be surprised to find a female contender running and possibly even winning when Miss Linda Stinkey-itch threw her hat into the political ring. If she doesn't win, Miss Stinkey-itch has threatened to let her hair grow under her armpits and suspend herself from the roof of the brick lounge for 90 days, while singing the Ukrainian National Anthem at the top of her lungs.

Locker Room Security

Locker room attendant Betty Jean Clockwatch recently reported several minor thefts occurred when she left her cage area to get a drink of water.

Six rows of lockers, two toilets, 56 medicine balls, and 215 baseball bats were reported missing immediately after she returned and noticed that all the tile had been taken off the floor.
