“Untitled”
Michelle Dunbar

Pain is pain and it rules my life
It rules my life in a way I can’t explain
Pain is pain and it’s killing me
It’s killing me in a slow and painful way

Please take me—take me away
Take me away from this evil and dreadful place
I can’t life—I can’t live here
I can’t live here and continue to be sane

Why must I be the one to deal the pain?
It is not like me and I want to leave
Why must I be the one to lay the deal?
I’d rather love and heal the pain

It wasn’t a choice to do what must be done
It isn’t pretty and it’ll never change
It’s not a choice to sacrifice one for many to save
It isn’t fun but it must be done today

Please take me—take me away
Take me away from this evil and dreadful place
I can’t live—I can’t live here
I can’t live here and continue to be sane

Endless Night
By Cynthia Corlew

(In Memory of the people sent to concentration camps)
Their souls taken,
Their freedom gone,
They always say,
“Where’d we go wrong?”

Sent to camps,
Death and fright,
The nightmare goes on,
In an endless night.

Terror around them,
Lurking in shadows,
Seeing the dead corpses,
Like dead willows.

The day of Liberation,
What a beautiful sight,
It’s now a memory,
But still an endless night
