July Photos

In this issue's photo gallery, there's a nautical theme: touring a Great Lakes research vessel, Cruisin' the Campus at orientation, building a boat at the maritime museum and even, ahem, preparing for the launch of a flagship building for the sciences. If you would like to submit photos of timely activities for future issues, email pictures with a brief caption to proffice@oswego.edu.

New book takes critical look at digital networks

Communication studies faculty member Ulises Mejias' first book critiques a networked world that treats personal information as a commodity, perpetuates inequalities and has sown the seeds for spying and misuse of data. Read more >

Bard's kings, knaves still strut public stage

Classic literature informs contemporary politics in a new book co-edited by Bruce Altschuler, "Shakespeare and Politics: What a Sixteenth-Century Playwright Can Tell Us About Twenty-First-Century Politics." Read more >

Faculty survey underlines Oswego's strengths

Results of a SUNY-wide survey of full-time faculty show that Oswego stands out from other campuses for its strengths in interdisciplinary collaboration and faculty mentoring. Read more >

New MBA meets growing needs in health services administration

The college will offer a new MBA degree program in health services administration this fall, preparing professionals with management skills necessary for a variety of careers in a fast-growing and complex industry.
