

WRITING GRANT PROPOSAL SEMINAR

For graduate students

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27TH
AT 11.30 AM – 1.30 PM

in the multipurpose room of the new
Center for Global Studies & Human Development

Working on a Grant?
Wondering how and where to apply?

This seminar is designed to provide the graduate students with an overview of the grant process and a forum to ask and discuss the various components that are involved in creating a successful proposal.

Today's economic climate is just one example of how it is becoming increasingly important for those in graduate degree programs to have a working knowledge of the grant process. Graduate students from a broad spectrum of disciplines will find it informative and useful in developing their professional careers.

Featuring two Stony Brook faculty members:

Michael Hadjiargyrou, Associate Professor of Biomedical Engineering, Genetics, and Orthopedics and Associate Vice President for Research

And

Robert Crease, Chairman of the Department of Philosophy

The Sciences and the Humanities will be discussed and all are encouraged to attend.

Light refreshments will be served

Attendance is free. Please RSVP to kriskstoy@googlemail.com for logistic purposes
