THE WHIRLWIND

Vol. No. Seven Issue One SUNY Cobleskill September 1984

Julianne Dunne, a freshman from Vroman, is "confused, very confused."

Question Of the Month

Yes!, The Question of the Month is back! This month we quizzed freshmen on how they felt on their first day here. Then we asked the seniors what it felt like to be back. Here are some of the answers we got.

"Smiley" Fulton and "Smoothy" Hackett say they're "looking forward to the change of pace!"

"We're a little aggravated because we're in a triple with only two dressers," answered Mike Fred and Eric Hutchinson of TenEyck.

Lisa Decker, Kathy English and Mary Roberts are all "looking forward to living downtown this semester."

Stacy Giordano is "glad for the break from work!"

Senior Scott Fredricks of Draper is "looking forward to graduation."

Theresa Miletti, a freshman in Davis, said she was "kind of nervous."

Pearson freshman Robert Kavel, a Liberal Arts major, says he "doesn't know yet!"

AAPC

by Kristen Benson

The American Animal Producers Club has an enthusiastic membership and a varied program of work. Many of their activities are intercurricular, with campus-wide support, and educational in nature. Some of these are building floats for the Fall Parents' Weekend, participating in the Winter Carnival and Agriculture Day, and sometimes just having fun.

Club members have raised almost $3,000 for scholarships to Cobleskill College students. They also make donations to 4-H and FFA projects each year. The group sponsors livestock and horse clinics, dances, a pig roast, and many other activities.

The 1984 AAPC horse clinic, featuring trainer Lisa Fields Kelly, had an attendance of over 300, including college students, 4-H club members, and horse enthusiasts from many areas of New York and New England. Also at this clinic were exhibits by breed associations, student clubs, and outside vendors.

A trip to the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, Canada, has been a popular event. Last November 63 club members, with the club advisor, attended this exhibition. There the students saw outstanding animals in the different livestock areas, as well as a vast array of eduational exhibits related to food production, distribution, and consumption.

The pig roast is a culmination of a year-long project of the club. Club members select young feeder pigs and take responsibility for all phases of swine management including feeding, swine health, and record keeping. In the spring the success of their efforts is measured by the guests at the club's pig roast.

This year's officers are David Fox, President; Scott Kelly, Vice-President; Kristin Benson, Secretary; Barbara Buxton, Treasurer; and Laura Sinclair, Historian.

Membership is open to any Cobleskill College student interested in animals.

•VOTE!
VOTE!
VOTE!
VOTE!

Vote for Reagan, Vote for Mondale, Vote for your Room mate . . . . BUT First you have to REGISTER!

Dear Fellow Coby Students,

Do you want to vote in this Falls Presidential Election? If you're 18 or will be by November 6th, Election Day, you can. First however you have to Register. Don't Panic! It isn't hard to do!

All you have to do is write a letter to your county's Board of Election. Tell them you want to register to vote. They will send you a form to fill out and send in. There is even a section on the form that will ask you if you want to apply for an Absentee Ballot. So voting here in Cobyland is easier than you thought.

I'm going to make it even easier for you! I am giving you a list of all the New York State County Boards of Election, so you don't even have to look them up! Now, no excuses!!! If I hear any of you complaining about our new president I am going to ask you if you even voted . . . AND YOU HAD BETTER SAY YES!!!

Patriotically yours,
Anne E. Ryan, Editor

P.S. I advise you to take action quickly on this so that you get your ballots in time.

Dr. Wilson Bryan Key spoke on the topic of Subliminal Seduction recently in Bouck Hall. This was one of many programs that will be sponsored partially or totally by the Student Programming Board. Check the Whirlwind and the "What's Happening" sheet for further details about other activities.

Financial Aid Corner

Toll Free Hotline Numbers

The New York State Higher Education Services Corporation has toll free phone numbers students may utilize to check on the status of their TAP grant or New York State Guaranteed Student Loan Applications.

The numbers are 1-800-642-6234 or 1-800-642-6238; students may call from 9:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m.

Students who have questions regarding the status of their TAP award or Student Loan should take advantage of this new service.

Financial Aid Notes

Just over half of all undergraduates received financial aid in the fall of 1982, according to a survey of 557 institutions by the Education Department's Higher Education Panel. The percentages ranged from 42 percent of students at public, two-year schools to 75 percent of those at four-year private schools. (CONTACT: HEP Report No. 60 is available from the Higher Education Panel, ACE, Suite 829, One Dupont Circle, NW, Washington, D.C. 20036).

Many needy students are still unaware that they qualify for financial aid, says a new report by the National Student Aid Coalition. It says lack of current and timely information on the ever-changing financial aid picture is one main reason the number of minority college students isn't growing.

Fast, Fast, Fast GSL's

Guaranteed Student Loans have always been a good, but complicated, idea. They require a lot of paper work, and because of that, many smaller banks consider them a pain in the bottom line – even though they earn 3.5 points over the current Treasury bill rate. All this has meant frustration and delay for students. But, perhaps, that's coming to an end.

A new company, Education Finance Service, based in St. Paul, Minnesota, specializes in handling GSLs, and claims it can get loan checks sent to school financial aid offices in two weeks instead of the usual six weeks or more.

Founded last December, EFS expects to be the second-largest GSL lender in Minnesota this year. It's already getting applications from all over and expects as much as 40 percent of its business to come from out of state.

EFS acts as a facilitator for the loans. Banks pay EFS a fee to handle the processing, which is how the company makes its money. Students pay only the guarantee and origin fees already prescribed by law.

EFS director, Phillip Miller, who designed Minnesota's student-loan program in 1973 and worked as an assistant to the national director of the GSL program for two and a half years before that, says there are at least 40 different approaches to GSLs because each state administers the program differently. Knowing the ropes helps EFS turn loans around quickly, he says.

Nation-wide, students will borrow $45 million through GSLs, and Miller's company hopes to handle as much as $10 million of that. It's tried to make the process as easy as possible by sending postpaid envelopes and information to financial aid offices across the country.

A spokesman at the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators said the company was too new and unknown for him to be able to comment on it.

Watts Line for Vietnam Veterans Tuition Awards Program

On June 11, the Higher Education Services Corporation installed a temporary statewide toll-free WATTS line to answer questions and provide information on the new Vietnam Veterans Tuition Awards Program.

The number for information on the Vietnam Veterans Tuition Awards Program is 1-800-635-1450 and will be available to students, Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., until September 1. Operators will respond to questions regarding eligibility, how to apply, length of study and award amounts.

Legislation establishing the program of tuition awards for Vietnam Veterans was signed by Governor Cuomo on April 20. This program to assist Vietnam Veterans enrolled in degreee programs on either a full- or part-time basis is effective for the 1984-85 school year.

College Cost On the Rise

by Anne Ryan

Well, everything seems to be costing more these days, and the cost of attending college is no different.

According to an annual survey recently released by the College Board the average cost for attending college this fall will rise about 6 percent for students living on campus. However, looking on the bright side this is an ending to the string of double-digit increases students have been experiencing in the last three years.

The survey calculated an average tab of $9,022 for on campus, private, 4 year students, up 7 percent from last year. The cost to commuters totals $7,782, 6 percent higher than last year. Public 4-year schools are rising less, but not by much. The total for a public 4-year college is if you live on campus is up by 5 percent to $4,881. Commuters are also up 5 percent for a total of $3,906.

Two-year colleges are getting more expensive too. Private 2-year colleges cost $7,064 for on-campus students, a rise of 7 percent, commuters jump 6 percent to $5,996. Public 2-year colleges (like our own Coby) will rise 5 percent to $3,998, and 2 percent to $3,423 for commuters.

What college will be the most expensive in the nation? Well, for the third year in a row it will be the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It climbed a whole 9 percent to a total annual cost of $16,130.

Get The Student Vote

The national push to register student voters drew large crowds of student organizers to conferences on both coasts, and successfully united opposing political factions in their common concern for higher education funding.

What remains to be seen, however, is whether local student registration campaigns can surmount the countless bureaucratic and political obstacles which have halted past registration efforts in their tracks.

Two of the national groups backing the student vote effort–the United States Student Association, and the National Student Educational Fund–confront those problems head on in a new manual, "Overcoming Student

Grads Report Job Ambitions

Most collegians have "exceedingly high" career expectations, but don't expect to sacrifice personal happiness family, health or ethical principles" in order to achieve them, a new survey of just-graduated students has found.

The survey of 2,000 students, sponsored by the College Placement Council (CPC), also found that most students are willing to work long hours to achieve their ambitions.

Nine of ten students would willingly spend more than one night a month away from home for the sake of their jobs. Some 34 percent of the students were willing to stay away from home more than five nights a month.

"To some extent, they may be setting themselves up for a fall," says Dr. David Hopkins, a University of Denver business professor and a co-author of the study.

He notes many students want it all–job satisfaction, frequent feedback from their bosses, "a rich personal life"--although combining such qualities in real life is extremely difficult.

"The student and employer will have to modify their perceptions of what they expect from each other," advises Linda Pengilly of the CPC. "It's going to be a two-way stretch."

Asked to rank 20 different job attributes in order of importance, the 2,000 students from 50 different schools said having an interest in the nature of the work itself was the most essential ingredient of liking their jobs.

The next most important attributes were the opportunity to use their skills and abilities, the chance for personal development, professional recognition and adequate wages, Hopkins says

Hopkins co-authored the study with the late Dr. Sandra E. LaMarre, also of the University of Denver.

Get the Student Vote . . .

Voting Barriers: A Guide to Electoral Power and Enfranchisement."

The book is a clear-cut guide to some murky problems. It provides case studies of past and present problems a student organizer faces, including summer purges of student voter roles like the one in 1983 which disenfranchised 3,000 students at Rutgers U.

Resistance to student registration remains strong in many areas where local officials view student participation in the electoral process as unfair to "permanent" residents, especially in local elections. Pennsylvania just banned voter registration on state-owned property, for example. Broward County in Florida requires a five-hour training course for student voter registration deputies, but doesn't require it for other deputies, says USSA's Bob Bingaman, and, he says, there are still districts in New York state that bar students from voting where they go to school.

In other cases election officials simply lack sufficient staff to handle a large influx of new registrations. The manual provides checklists of actions for handling both sorts of situation.

Iroquois Festival A Success

by Anne Ryan

On September 1st and 2nd, the Schoharie Museum of the Iroquois Indian presented the 3rd annual Iroquois Indian Festival. The festival gave all of its attendance the chance to explore Iroquois customs and tradition.

Archological finds from the archaic period to the contact period were on display. Festival goers were also treated to displays showing them actual Indian clothing, courtesy of Deana Sky of Six Nations. The S.M.I.I. (Schoharie Museum of the Iroquois Indian) also had an area set aside to show diagrams for the new museum that they are in the process of building. The 45 acre site for this museum is located on Caverns Rd., in Howes Cavern. S.U.N.Y. Cobleskill Wildlife majors will be helping out there by conducting a wildlife inventory.

Along with the museum displays was a craft show. There were people displaying all kinds of talent. Some people worked with beads or leather, others specialized in clothing or basketweaving. There were several different types of carving being done, and there were some painters and scketchers too. Other crafts on display included dolls, of both cloth or cornhusk, and pottery. There was certainly a lot of imagination, time, and skill on display.

Everyone who attended the show seemed to enjoy the festivities. I particularly liked the Jim Sky Dancers, who performed some of the Iroquois social dances. I spoke with Shannon Hayes, one of the museums young volunteers and she said that the festival was "Neat, fun, and interesting." She also said that she "liked helping out" and that she was "learning alot". I bet she'll be back next year!

Dear Voluptuous One

Dear Readers,

For those of you who are returning students I need not introduce myself. However, if you are a freshman or have never read my column before an introduction would be appropriate. I write the Whirlwind's advice column. I do not deal with any of the serious problems that you might have. If you have any real problems talk to your dorm director, R.A. or Academic Advisor. I don't want to hear them, I have too many problems of my own. I handle strictly fictional and-or frivolous dilemmas.

If you have such a problem and you would like me to help just slip a note addressed to me care of The Whirlwind and maybe I'll use it in my column!Well folks, I guess I'll start this year with one of last years unanswered letters. Hope you enjoy the column!!!!!

Love,
V-1

P.S. The only way to find out my secret identity is to become a Whirlwind Staff Writer!

Dear V-1,

Help! My boyfriend's Laundry Room antics are embarassing me. While helping me to do a load of laundry he discovered a pair of my underwear. He put them on his head and refused to take them off! He wore them for the rest of the evening, he says he finds it both intimate and funny. I think it is humiliating! What should I do? Is he normal?

Signed,
Puzzled Laundress

Dear PL,

Don't worry about it. I was worried too until I got your letter. My boyfriend wears my undies on his head too!!! I guess it is just one of these things that only men understand.

Love,
V-1

WE'RE BACK AND BETTER

by Judy St. Ledger

WCOB is at 56 on your am dial. WCOB rocks all day and most of the night. WCOB is pop, rock, heavy metal, jazz and country. But most of all WCOB is THE BEST RADIO STATION IN COBLESKILL.

When you get tired of D.J.s like Bob Mason and Ric Mitchell stats to put you to sleep, turn on WCOB. We've got entertaining D.J.'s, great music, and the hometown advantage. We know what you want to hear; they don't. We take requests—5147.

WCOB has always been Cobleskill's number one radio. With the Bouck Hall Studio, they're easy to find. The WCOB signal runs only through the campus, therefore, they play only the music the campus wants to hear. If you couldn't get it last year, or you never tried, try now. The WCOB staff spent the summer improving the sound, and fixing transmission.

So, if you want to listen to hype turn on PYX or 92; if you want to know what the campus is listening to, turn on WCOB!

Levi's® Prewashed 501® Blue Jeans

There's just one thing missing from these classic Levi's® button-fly jeans. The Shrinkage. These jeans are pre-washed and pre-shrunk to take the guesswork out of buying Levi's® button-fly jeans. The pair that fits just right when you try them on will still fit right after you wash them. The styling is Levi's® original but they're softer, more comfortable the first time you wear them. Levi's® prewashed button-fly jeans. The shrinkage is gone, but the quality is still there.

Who's In the Running?

Within the last several years the offensive passing game has increased greatly in safistication and bonifide glory. This year in the National Football League (NFL) some of the best running backs ever approach the legenderous Jim Brown's record for the most yards run during a career (12,312 yards). Among the bucks that strive for Brown's record there are others that have just started stalking it and will exhibit their talents in front of all.

The major interests will be Walter Payton of the Bears and Franco Harris an ex-Steeler, now waiting to be picked up by a team. Passing is passing, but nothing quickens the pulse like watching a great back busting tackles and running to daylight. This year there are two fantastic running backs within touching distance of a record that was thought would never be broken.

Another running back that is sure to please would be Eric Dickerson of the Rams. Eric went on a rookie rampage, with 1,808 yards on an NFL record 390 carries. Another fantastic rookie who had a great year is Curt Warner of the Cinderella Seahawks who led the league in rushing and his team to the first playoff in several years.

Another powerful back is John Riggins of the Washington Redskins. This man is a prime example of a human bulldozer. Riggins is four years older then Payton and 2000 yards behind him. Tony Donsett is thirty years old and 1,100 behind Payton, but with the Dallas offensive line in desperate need of rebuilding could slow up his threat.

Earl Campbell has taken several punishing seasons and placed them in his pocket, but they have taken their toll on Campbell who is 3,319 yards behind Walter Payton.

In the distance lingers Eric Dickerson, Curt Warner and the St. Louis Cardinals Otis Anderson who will be there several years from today, but for now there is going to be some tough running in the NFL so don't miss it.
