The man who “runs” the Boilermaker

Homebuilder. Student. Law enforcement professional. Race director. In all that he’s done, Bob Ingalls has always been goal-oriented.

As an 18-year-old newlywed, Ingalls finished his newly built house in Clinton, N.Y., doing the plumbing, heating and hardwood floors with help from his in-laws and friends.

Forty-four years later, Ingalls is still building but now his tools are volunteers; his project is the nation’s largest 15 kilometer race. As director of the Boilermaker Road Race, he is responsible for an event that draws 10,000 runners and countless cheering supporters to its Utica route each year on the second Sunday in July.

Ingalls succeeds race creator Earle Reed, president of ECR international formerly Utica Boilerworks—who started the race in 1977. Reed knew Ingalls was the right choice. “He has a wealth of knowledge about the area. He’s a fine listener and can handle the tremendous pressure,” explains Reed.

After high school, Ingalls attended Mohawk Valley Community College for one semester, then went to work in the Oneida County Sheriff’s Department as a dispatcher. In 1964, he graduated from the New York State Basic Police Training Academy as valedictorian. He returned to MVCC, taking evening classes and earning an associate’s degree cum laude in police science.

After taking two courses at Utica College, Ingalls transferred to SUNYIT’s (Upper Division College, as it was called then) criminal justice program. He took two or three night classes each semester while working road patrols midnight to 8 a.m. and juggling two part-time jobs during the day. How did he manage? “I’ve always kept that busy,” Ingalls acknowledges. In 1977, he earned a bachelor’s degree summa cum laude in criminal justice.

One former SUNYIT assistant professor, George Curtis now a Utica College associate professor in criminal justice has known Ingalls for 30 years. Curtis, who taught two constitutional law courses, remembers Ingalls, the student: “He was very bright and motivated. He often helped other students. He’s very efficient, extremely organized and he treats everyone with respect,” says Curtis.

After becoming a detective in 1969, Ingalls investigated felony cases, conducting interviews and gathering evidence. According to Ingalls, he was an effective interrogator because he’s organized and tenacious. From 1970 to 1974, he headed the 10-person criminal investigation unit. This administrative job was “a little less fun than finding the bad guy and arresting him,” Ingalls admits. As captain from 1974 to 1981, he oversaw 50 people.

On Jan. 1, 1981, Ingalls became Oneida County Undersheriff – 20 years to the day after his father, Robert Ingalls Sr., became Oneida County Undersheriff. Ingalls wore his father’s badge during his nine years overseeing the 300-person department.

In 1981, Ingalls attended a three-month F.B.I. class in Quantico, Virginia, earning college credits in fingerprinting, DNA testing and profiling. “It was very rewarding,” he recalls. At Quantico, Ingalls also made some life changes. A three-pack a day smoker since high school, he quit and began running a mile a day. By the end of the class, he was running three miles daily. By 1982, he was running 1,000 miles a year; that year, he ran his first Boilermaker. “The excitement hooked me into running,” he says. He’s run 10 marathons and in 1997, he became president of the Utica Roadrunners.

After a knee injury in 2001, Ingalls cut back: he now runs 700 miles a year, often on a five-mile route through Clinton back roads three or four times a week, often before dawn. He also scuba dives, rides a motorcycle, swims, plays golf three days a week, roller blades and cross country skis.

From 1990 through 1999, Ingalls held various positions in the Oneida County Executive’s office: administrative analyst, STOP-DWI coordinator, 911 Program Coordinator and Executive Assistant: “The ultimate administrative job,” Ingalls says.

In 2001, when Reed asked the recently retired Ingalls to become race director, he was delighted. “I was looking for something else. This was perfect,” he says. Ingalls currently holds two paid positions. Three hours a month, he serves on the Oneida County parole board; 40 hours a month, he’s a consultant to the county’s child fatality review team. As race director, he usually works half days. From March through July, his work day expands to seven hours.

Many law enforcement skills prove useful in race management. Most important: people skills. “Listening to people is more important than talking,” he says. As volunteer race director, he oversees 5,400 volunteers, plus 125 coordinators and directors. “I stand aside and let them do their work.” He also maintains sponsors, speaks to the media and spends time “tweaking” matters. For example, next year runners will no longer need verification cards, making race registration simpler.

Eventually, Ingalls, 62, hopes the entire race registration process will occur online. He also wants the race to receive national television coverage. “I’ll plug away at it,” he says cheerfully. If anyone can get network TV exposure for the Boilermaker, goal-oriented, tireless Bob Ingalls is the person to do it.

When he was growing up, Andy Wolfe sometimes went to work with his mother, an archaeologist. Going on digs with her was his first experience with what he calls “continuous discovery and learning.”

This semester, Dr. Andrew Wolfe brought his lifelong love of history and engineering to SUNYIT. As an assistant professor of civil engineering technology in the School of Information Systems & Engineering Technology (ISET), he will continue the work he began at his previous institution, Union College. “I especially look forward to teaching here at SUNYIT because it is near my most recent research interest, the Erie Canal,” Dr. Wolfe said.

His most recent research experience helped a community preserve its history: his team uncovered Lock 1 of the original Erie Canal in Albany. The find prevented a marina from being built on the site, which would have destroyed the artifact and the rich history surrounding it. The discovery received widespread media attention, including an Associated Press feature article which appeared in newspapers across the state, on msnbc.com, and in the New York Times.

Dr. Wolfe began his work on the Erie Canal when Union College celebrated the 175th anniversary of the historic engineering marvel. He directed four groups of students that created models of the lock systems; he and his students researched archives and original maps of the first locks in the canal. While there are many locks still in use on the canal, Dr. Wolfe’s research focuses on the earlier locks that have been covered up in the many years since their use.

His goals as a teacher focus on encouraging students to think about design and use history to determine the best engineering designs for the future. Examples of this include his volunteer work in the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation Walkathon in Albany. He and his students spent time directing traffic at the event. Afterward, he assigned his students to create traffic designs that would improve the flow of traffic and pedestrians. The plans were implemented the following year.

He regards “building camaraderie with his students” and “helping them develop and progress as individuals, as well as engineers” as important aspects of his teaching. Dr. Wolfe is a motivated and energetic man who loves to explore many avenues of his field and become involved in multiple projects. He says it all stems from a “need to do things...to explore the links between history and engineering.”

Director of Career Services

SUNYIT brings together job-seekers, employers

Hundreds of students, alumni and other job-seekers joined more than 65 companies local, regional, national and international at SUNYIT’s Career Fair 2003 Oct. 9 in the Campus Center gym.

The annual event is one of the largest of its kind in the State University system. Participating employers took part to fill internship, part-time, and full-time opportunities; current SUNYIT students, alumni and other interested attendees dropped off résumés, hoping to make career connections.

Among the companies recruiting at Career Fair 2003 were: Albany Medical Center Hospital, BAE Systems, Eversan Incorporated, Fiber Instrument Sales, FleetBoston Financial Group, Masonic Home, Orion Bus Industries, PAR Government Systems Corporation, Resource Center for Independent Living, and Utica National Insurance Group.

This year, an effort was made to increase the participation of SUNYIT alumni. “Increasingly, employers are relying on Career Services as a resource for experienced professionals in addition to the more traditional entry-level hires,” says Career Services Director Dr. Thomas Matthews. “Alumni interested in attending Career Fair found employers offering professional advancement as well as opportunities to make a career change.”

Career Services Director Thomas Matthews and Assistant Director Robert Palazzo thank Michael Evke ’84 for donating a Career Fair sign.
Area newspapers, TV and radio stations often do “back to school” stories to show what’s new at the region’s colleges. And this fall, they found plenty of material at SUNYIT.

Reporters and photographers from Utica, Rome, and Syracuse newspapers, as well as Utica-Rome TV and radio stations, focused on the arrival of SUNYIT’s first class of freshmen. The Syracuse Post-Standard published a feature on the first day of classes with quotes from President Mason H. Somerville, two staff members, and two freshmen. The Utica Observer-Dispatch shadowed a freshmen on his first day of classes and published the results the next day. WKTV previewed the start of the semester, sending a crew to the last Orientation session on the Friday before classes started.

Coverage of the early part of the semester continued with radio and TV reports on Convocation Sept. 4. A videographer from WKTV captured the procession across campus after interviewing President Somerville and guest speaker Dr. Lawrence Sturman, director of the Wadsworth Laboratory.

SUNYIT will hold an open house Saturday, April 17, 2004, for prospective students and their families. For more information, contact the Office of Admissions. Phone: 792-7500 or (866) 2 SUNYIT or e-mail admissions@sunyit.edu.
Even as the first class of freshmen began their SUNYIT experience, the Admissions office was busy meeting with high school students and their parents. Discovery Day, an open house program for prospective freshmen and their families, was held at SUNYIT Oct. 13. The day featured informational sessions about SUNYIT, briefings from faculty and staff, a panel discussion featuring current freshmen, and tours of the campus. In November, the annual fall open house offered similar opportunities for all prospective students.

In addition to the October Discovery Day program, SUNYIT hosts two open houses each year for prospective students. The spring 2004 open house will be held Saturday, April 17.

Phonathon Helps Make the Dream Come Alive

This year’s Phonathon to support the SUNYIT Annual Fund is in full swing with 14 callers reaching out to alumni, parents and friends three nights a week.

As of the end of October, the Phonathon had generated $34,239 in pledges toward our goal of $100,000 for the 2003-2004 Annual Fund Campaign. The generosity of those who support the Phonathon helps provide scholarships to students, support a unique learning environment among students and faculty, attract world-class faculty to SUNYIT and ensure the creation of a well-rounded student experience.

During the Phonathon, current students have the opportunity to ask alumni about their careers and post-college experiences, and alumni are updated on the latest campus news and events. Each caller makes 80-100 calls a night, updating alumni records and receiving pledges.

During the fall semester, the Phonathon ran from September 15 to November 24. Donors whose gifts are received by December 31, 2003, can use the donation as a tax deduction on their 2003 tax return. The Phonathon will continue in the spring semester with calls being made February through April.

SUNYIT looks forward to a bright future filled with opportunities and achievements. Help SUNYIT Make the Dream Come Alive by educating the next generation through a gift to the Annual Fund.

The Top Ten Ways Our Friends Can Support SUNYIT

• Attend an event in the community and represent SUNYIT
• Participate on a committee or project: Fall Fest Reunion, special event, phonathon, fundraiser
• Host a reception at your home or club
• Make an introduction at your company or foundation that grants scholarships
• Identify five prospective donors each year and assist the development office in getting to know your friend, colleague or family member (i.e. lunch, meeting, tour of the campus)
• Make a yearly donation to the SUNYIT Annual Fund
• Give a challenge lead gift now to support reunion class giving throughout the year
• Make a gift to the first-ever Alumni Association Endowed Scholarship Fund

Kevin Grimmer, director of athletics and recreation at SUNYIT, has announced the appointment of four coaches: Tim Cox, head golf coach; Peterson Jerome, head men’s soccer coach; Bill Tylutki, head men’s and women’s cross-country coach; and Mark Murphy, head lacrosse coach.

Cox has been a member of the SUNYIT facilities staff since 1984. A graduate of Herkimer County Community College, where he excelled in golf, basketball, volleyball and track and SUNY Brockport, Cox will look to encourage his athletes to further their athletic and personal development as he builds up the golf program.

Jerome comes to SUNYIT after a successful playing career at Herkimer County Community College and Ohio State University. At HCCC, Jerome was twice named First Team All-Region and First Team All-Conference. In addition, he was selected First Team NJCAA All-America (1997) and Conference Player of the Year. While at Ohio State, Jerome was selected to the 1999 All-Ohio Team and 1999 All-Big Ten Conference. After graduation from Ohio State, Jerome was the head women’s soccer coach at HCCC (2001), where he led the Generals to a 12-3 record and was selected Mountain Valley Conference Coach of the Year. Last year, Jerome served as the assistant men’s soccer coach at SUNYIT.

Tylutki joins the staff at SUNYIT to develop the men’s and women’s cross-country as a viable and important part of the SUNYIT athletic program. An established coach at New Hartford High School, where he coached at various times, soccer, track, and cross country, Tylutki will look to build squads that can compete in the SUNYAC. Tylutki is a graduate of Fulton-Montgomery Community College and SUNY Oswego where he competed in cross country and track.

Murphy played midfield at Herkimer on two regional championship teams in 1984-1985. After that, was leading goal scorer for Castleton State Spartans in 1986. While finishing his bachelor’s degree at SUNY Cortland, he began coaching high school lacrosse; he has also played and coached on many area club teams. He served as an assistant coach last year at SUNYIT.

Meet the New Wildcat

SUNYIT’s Wildcat mascot has a whole new look.

The Athletics Department of the State University of New York Institute of Technology has unveiled a new visual identity package that includes updated Wildcat logos and individual images for each sport.

“The new Wildcat represents the tremendous changes occurring in our intercollegiate sports program,” says Athletics Director Kevin Grimmer. “As a four-year institution, we are poised to aggressively pursue a new level of competitive excellence. The new look reflects our program’s growing excitement, strength and energy. Our team apparel, athletics Web site, stationery, scoreboards and everything related will be changed to include our bold and fresh new look in the immediate future.”

The creator of the new Wildcat image-Phoenix Design Works of New York City-is a leader in collegiate design and brand identity. Since 1985, Phoenix has established a long, award-winning résumé in professional sports as well, including Major League Baseball’s Marlins, Rockies and Reds, the National Basketball Association, the National Football League, NASCAR, and the Breeders’ Cup, among others. Phoenix’s corporate client roster includes Disney, ESPN, Fox Sports, Coca-Cola and Jaguar.

SUNYIT’s 9th Annual 5K Scholarship Run is Saturday, April 24, 2004, starting at 9 a.m. The course follows a trail through the campus, into the woods and out again and past the residence halls, ending at the Campus Center where a complimentary all-you-can-eat pancake breakfast will be provided by Sodexho Food Service. Each participant will receive a t-shirt while supplies last. For race information, call Scott Gorgas at (315) 792-7341.
