SPEAK YOUR MIND!

“ DO YOU THINK
PRESIDENT BUSH
SHOULD BE RE-ELECTED? ”

JEAN GUERRIER: I don't think he should be re-elected because I feel that we went to war because of oil. He hasn't done anything to impress me. The only thing that did impress me was when we went to war with the Middle East. We lost a lot of men in that war. I don't feel that those men's lives had to be put at stake just because of oil. That was selfishness. Iraq should have taken care of it by themselves.

MELANIE KEEGAN: I don't think he should be re-elected because I would like a president who is concerned with what is going on in this country before others. Since he is the president of the United States, it is good to reach out to other countries, but there are people starving in this one, too.

MR. MISNER: No, because I think we have had 12 years of divided government, between the congress and the presidency. We should have them working together, with a Democratic president, and a Democratic congress.

BRYAN MCALARY AND KIM MELENDEZ: We feel that he should not be elected, although he did a great job during the war and handled the crisis well. But Saddam is still in power; he should have been completely taken out of power. So he did a semi-good job at that. The economy has been down in a recession for such a long period of time, that the U.S. needs a change, a new voice, a new point of view in power. Maybe someone who is younger, too.

GREGG EVANS: I don't think Bush should be re-elected. He's made the rich richer and the poor poorer. The economy is horrible. He did kick some ass in Kuwait, but that doesn't make up for what he has done over here.

BILL KAISER: That's a funny thing you ask. I do feel that President Bush is the right man for the chair. The electric chair, that is. If we did have capital punishment, I think President Bush would be a great candidate for it. As for other candidates, I think maybe Jake Redfield would be pretty acceptable for office right now. Other than that, I really can't say.

JAKE REDFIELD: At this point, I would like to take the time to thank Bill Kaiser for nominating me for office, but I must decline as of now. I feel that the competition out there is too fierce. You know that the general masses are afraid of change. No one wants to vote for a liberal Democrat. Look what happened to Mondale.

Tech Senators, Faculty, Administrators Lobby Albany About Budget Cuts

BY MARY BETH BADGLEY

On March 3, three Delhi Tech student senators and a host of faculty and administrators traveled to our state legislator's offices in Albany. It was called "SUNY Day." Throughout the course of the day, all who attended were given a briefing on the current budget negotiations. What they were told was simply not good.

SUNY is facing cuts this year of $143.5 million. They expect $60 million of that sum to be replenished by an increased tuition for 34 of its state-operated campuses. Delhi was not overlooked. Our quaint little campus is given a $13 million budget to work with. However, it has been cut 10 times in four years. It has been cut by over $1 million this year alone. This results in a number of things. First is the obvious: a $500 increase in our tuition. What we rarely hear about are the job cuts. When we do hear, it is usually too late. Delhi will be forced to cut as many as 20 jobs. If that was to happen, we would be forced to deal with crowded classrooms. Professors who normally teach English could be placed in the psychology department, or anywhere else they are needed. A perfect example of this occurred last semester with the Intro. to Psychology course; some students had up to four or five different instructors due to the lack of staff.

Basically students will be paying more and receiving less. This is very serious—and something all students should be actively against.

Our student senate vice president, Reagan Frawley, was one of those who lobbied legislators on SUNY Day. He believes, "People must recognize the crucial importance that public higher education plays in solving all the problems facing society today, and they must make it known by active participation in their own governance."

Students are beginning to display this. On March 10, the student senate held a letter-writing campaign in Farrell Hall. All students living on campus received a flier in the mail, stating the time and place where they could do this. Overall, the turnout was a success. Each student wrote a letter to the senator from their hometown, explaining why these proposed SUNY budget cuts cannot be allowed to happen. If you did not make it to the letter-writing campaign, understand its importance, and take five minutes to write a letter.

Students Rally Against Tuition Hikes

(AP)—Several hundred college students are demanding more money be allocated in the state budget for New York colleges and universities.

Armed with signs that read, "Don't be loony, save SUNY," the students from the State University of New York, the City University of New York and the state's private schools rallied recently outside the Capitol and marched on the Executive Mansion.

"Hey, hey, Cuomo! Budget cuts have got to go," the students chanted.

Gov. Mario Cuomo's budget proposal to the state Legislature calls for a tuition increase of up to $500 a year at New York's public universities. There also are proposals to cut state aid to the state's private colleges and universities.

Facing earlier cuts ordered by Cuomo and the Legislature, the State University has raised tuition in the past year by $800 for New York residents to $2,150 a year.

"This is very heartening," said Tim Reilly, president of the United University Professions union that represents many SUNY professors. "This kind of coalition is exactly what the politicians need to see."

While students were demonstrating against the proposed budget, Cuomo was complaining of a lack of action on the spending plan by the state Legislature.

"To say that I'm disappointed puts it mildly," Cuomo said of what he sees as a lack of progress in budget talks.

Cuomo presented the Legislature with his $56.5 billion budget proposal in January. The state's fiscal year begins April 1, but Cuomo and the Legislature haven't met that deadline since 1984.

Steven Greenberg, a spokesman for state Assembly Speaker Saul Weprin, said Sunday that budget talks remain stalled over spending proposals for Medicaid, education, criminal justice and transportation.

"There have been lots of discussions . . . but they have not closed down any of the four major outstanding areas," Greenberg said of budget talks.

Michelangelo Virus Lays An Egg

(AP)—The day of techno-doom turned out to be a dud. The much-hyped Michelangelo computer virus struck at scattered points around the world Friday, March 6, but failed to live up to predictions of widespread catastrophe.

A virus expert received reports of about 2,000 damaged machines worldwide Friday.

Some experts said the anticlimax could make computer users less careful about the thousands of other variations of the insidious electronic invaders, which remain a real threat.

"If there's an upside to all this it's greater awareness of the problem," said Pam Kane, an author on viruses and owner of a company that makes anti-virus software. "The downside is it's the boy who cried wolf."

Computer owners will say "we're not going to spend another penny on (computer) security," she said.

The virus sits dormant inside IBM-type personal computers awaiting the PC's internal clock to reach March 6, the birthday of the Italian Renaissance artist, which was Friday, March 6. Once the PC is turned on that day, the virus can destroy programs and data on the computer's hard disk.

The virus—a rogue bit of computer software—was discovered about a year ago. It moves from computer to computer as users exchange infected floppy disks. Its creator and the connection with the artist are unknown.

For days, the news media relayed forecasts of impending doom from Michelangelo. The virus was featured on ABC's "Nightline," on morning TV shows, on CNN, and on the front pages of papers nationwide. It was the lead story on the nightly local news in some cities Thursday, March 5.

TECH STUDENTS ARE OPINIONATED

Delhi students have strong opinions about the programs and services the college offers.

That's one conclusion that came out of the American College Testing Program's Student Opinion Survey conducted on campus last spring. Delhi was one of 45 SUNY institutions participating in survey.

"Delhi's respondents seemed to have very definite and strong feelings" about many items on the 80-question survey, according to ACT researchers. ACT noted that Delhi students gave the highest satisfaction rankings to: class size relative to the type of course; sufficient challenge offered by your program of study; and access to computing services and facilities.

The college earned its lowest satisfaction ratings for campus food services, parking facilities, and purposes for which activity fees are used.

Complete results from the survey were distributed to functional supervisors earlier this month. Copies of the survey are also available at the research and planning office in Bush Hall.

FAT MAN SITS ON FLEEING ROBBER

(AP)—Freelance photographer Scott Kilborn isn't the kind of guy who'll give a criminal an even break. And Wiley Logan can attest to it. Not only is Logan charged with robbing a Capitol Hill King Soopers in Denver, he also has a shattered lower right leg, suffered when Kilborn helped a security guard subdue him.

"I sat on him. I broke his leg," said Kilborn, 44. "I weigh 380 pounds."

MUMPS ON CAMPUS?

A Delhi College student has symptoms of mumps. Although there have been no confirmed cases as of March 11, the student has been isolated.

If you have any possible symptoms, please go to the Health Center in Foreman Hall. The Health Center is open from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday; 8:30 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. on Tuesday; and 8:30 a.m. until 7:30 p.m. on Thursday.

Please report to the Health Center if you meet one of the following conditions:

- You have not been immunized and never had the mumps.
- You were immunized prior to 12 months of age and never had the mumps.

If you were born prior to January 1, 1957, you are considered immune. Anyone who has been told by his or her physician that they are "immune compromised" should see their physician or report to the Health Center for a recommendation.

Campus visitors should be notified that it appears the campus has been exposed to mumps. Visitors should verify their immunization status prior to visiting campus. No campus events are cancelled.

The administration will provide additional information as it becomes available. If you need clarification, please call Ms. Baker in the Health Center at 746-4194.

LOST & FOUND

The following items were found and can be claimed by the owner at the Public Safety Department, North Construction Building: two "Ilco" vehicle keys, black wallet, gray wallet, one black glove, hubcap, tan umbrella, Timex quartz wristwatch.

Delhi Tech Selects New Vice President

Selection follows an extensive national search

J. William Harniman, dean of administration at Schenectady County Community College, has been named vice president for administration at Delhi Tech.

Harniman, who will begin his new duties May 1, was selected following an extensive national search that attracted over 125 candidates, according to President Mary Ellen Duncan. He succeeds Anthony Scaccia, who retired last fall following a 30-year academic and administrative career at Delhi Tech.

As vice president for administration, Harniman will be responsible for the supervision of the college's financial, personnel, budgeting, auxiliary services, physical plant, public safety, and computing operations.

Harniman has served as Schenectady's dean of administration since 1983. In that role, he served as general officer of the college and was responsible for the business, financial, purchasing, personnel, physical plant, and data processing functions.

At Schenectady, he also served as chairman of the college's computer peer users task force and faculty-student association; chairman of the New York State Community College Business Officers Association Audit and Legal Committee; an evaluator for the Commission on Higher Education Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools; and as a member of the New York State Community College Business Officers Association Planning and Finance Committee.

His extensive background in two-year college education also includes appointments as comptroller/chief financial officer at Tompkins Cortland Community College in Dryden, 1982-83; vice president for administrative services at Mohawk Valley Community College, 1979-1982; director of the auxiliary service corporation at Mohawk Valley, 1978-1979; and as assistant business officer at Herkimer County Community College, 1977-1978.

Harniman earned distinguished Air Force R.O.T.C. graduate honors while completing his bachelor's degree in business administration at The Citadel. He also holds a master's degree in business administration from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

He is a member of the National Council of Community College Business Officials, the National Association of College and University Business Officers, the Association of Physical Plant Administrators, and the Association of School Business Officials.

Alcoholics Anonymous Meets At Delhi Tech

BY JACOB REDFIELD

On Thursday nights from 8:30 to 9:30 in the Farrell Hall basement, Delhi Tech now offers support meetings for anyone who needs help in discussing alcohol-related problems. This is the Alcoholics Anonymous Fellowship, which has existed since last semester.

It is important that such fellowships exist because there are students on campus who are not aware, or do not want to admit, that they may have a problem with alcohol.

Admitting that one has a problem with alcohol is the first, and hardest, step toward recovery. To seek help and find a group that one can relate to is very important.

There is a cure for alcoholism, and the Alcoholics Anonymous fellowship is the place where one can take steps to a cleaner and healthier life.

The Alcoholics Anonymous fellowship was formed by and for the students of Delhi Tech, and does nothing but benefit the students.

If you think you may have a problem with alcohol, you may want to attend a meeting and see what other students have to say about this disease. This program is based on anonymity—and it works.

LIFEGUARD TRAINING COURSE TO BE OFFERED

A 27-hour American Red Cross lifeguard training course will be offered at Delhi Tech beginning April 25.

Classes, which meet in the Kunsela Hall aquatic center, are scheduled for April 25, May 2, and May 9, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and May 10 from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Participants must be at least 15 years old by April 25, hold current standard first aid and adult CPR certifications, and demonstrate strong swimming skills. A swimming test will be administered during the first class.

Enrollment is limited. Additional information is available by calling Edward Morford, aquatic director, at 746-4280.

Applications are also being accepted for American Red Cross water safety instructor program, scheduled for June at Delhi Tech. The program begins with an instructor candidate training session June 6 from 12 noon to 6 p.m. in the Kunsela Hall aquatic center.

That will be followed by water safety instructor classes scheduled for: June 8-11, 4-6 p.m.; June 13, 9 a.m.-6 p.m.; June 14, 2-6 p.m.; June 22-26, 4-6 p.m.; and June 27, 12-5 p.m.

Participants must hold current emergency water safety or lifeguard training, current instructor candidate training, or introduction to health services education certification; be 17 years old as of June 6; and possess swimmer level skills.

Registration for the water safety instructor course is limited as well. To register, contact Mr. Morford at 746-4280.

Giants' Sean Landeta Tells The Truth At Tech

Punter talks of pressures on professional athletes

BY KEITH FEDERMAN

I thought Sean Landeta would be talking about drinking and driving at his lecture in the gym on February 25. I only went to hear him speak because it was required for class, but I was glad I did choose to go. He focused on current issues in the sports community.

Sean Landeta spoke of the pressures of professional sports and the impact of the press. He said, "If you drop a glass of milk in your kitchen, no big deal. If you drop that glass of milk in a cafeteria full of people, you get embarrassed." Landeta does his job in front of 80,000 fans, so if he fouls up, everyone knows about it. His life is in the public eye, and he has to watch out.

He talked about the differences between the press of today and 20 years ago. Back then, the press covered up scandals; today they thrive on them. He referred to Ray Handley, head coach of the Giants, and how Handley took a lot of heat. Landeta said, "Coaches get too much credit and too much blame." He's exactly right.

Landeta also spoke about the NFL requirements and benefits, and most of all, the reality of it all. For example, the average football career lasts three-and-a-half years, but the NFL pension starts at four years. The average life-span of a football player is 54 years, but a player starts receiving his pension at age 55. Something is wrong, Landeta said, with that scenario. He said there is an overabundance of money in the pension fund of at least $100 million.

Sean Landeta is a confident man and never quit anything or slowed down in his career; he wanted to be the best.

He said having confidence—thinking and knowing you are the best—is more than half the job of being successful. Believe in yourself, he said, no matter how society portrays you or your goals. He touched upon the pressures on high school and college athletes, and how much they want to be in the pro's, and how they would do anything to get there.

He said if an unskilled person took steroids, he would just be a bigger unskilled player. Steroids is no way to go and answers nothing. A lot of athletes take them, thinking it is going to help, but it doesn't. He said the penalty for being caught taking drugs should be more severe, and more caution should take place.

On my way to Landeta's lecture, I thought, "Oh no, not another don't-drink-and-drive-speech." But it wasn't. Sean Landeta was insightful and informative. He was very honest with us and didn't try to hide anything. He joked around a lot and had a good sense of humor. He joked about the time John Madden, the CBS announcer, called him Charlie Brown after he messed up a kick in a play-off game in Chicago. He was friendly, too, and took time out to sign autographs, answer questions, and show people his two Super Bowl rings.

I was very glad I went because I learned a lot about Sean Landeta—and a lot about myself.

HATS OFF TO DELHI CHEFS!

Delhi Tech's culinary team was honored February 3 in New York City for its award-winning performance at the International Hotel, Motel, and Restaurant Show. The team, comprised of students from Delhi's restaurant and foodservice management program, captured third place in the show's prestigious Salon of Culinary Arts competition. Members of the team included (left to right): John DeFrancesco of Carmel, William Farkouh of Brooklyn, Heather Hughes of Delhi, Daniel Baker of Massapequa, and Douglas Vaughan of Herkimer.

Students Size Up Burrito Record

(AP)—College students cooked up a 1,116 pound burrito in San Diego recently in hopes of breaking big burrito records worldwide with a Mexican feast the size of a Rose Parade float.

The University of California, San Diego volunteers created a concoction of 847 pounds of beans, 102 pounds of tortillas, 90 pounds of cheese, 67 pounds of guacamole, nine pounds of salsa, and an unspecified amount of sour cream and olives.

"It was stupid. It was messy. It was fun," said Blue Robbins, assistant resident dean for UCSD's Muir College. "The highlight came when a drummer from the pep band did the drum roll for the last glob of guacamole. It was quite thrilling."

About 50 students put together the 20-foot long burrito to break the Guinness Book of World Records' previous record set at 700 pounds. The record-breaking burrito was quickly cut up and hauled off by volunteers to feed more than 500 homeless people in San Diego.

Tech To Celebrate Women's History Month

The Student Programming Board will present a series of speakers to celebrate Women's History Month in March. The series, entitled "Women of Influence," will feature speakers from four diverse fields, including entertainment, education, politics, and medicine.

Keynote speakers include Comedian Donna Cooper, March 23, 8 p.m., Farrell Hall Theater; Binghamton Mayor Juanita Crabb, March 24, 8 p.m., Farrell Hall Theater; Susan Hart, a registered physician's assistant at Delaware Valley Hospital in Walton, March 30, 8 p.m., Farrell Hall Coffeehouse; and Delhi Tech President Mary Ellen Duncan, March 31, 8 p.m., Farrell Hall Theater. All four presentations are free and open to the public.

Starting off the series will be Comedian Donna Cooper. Cooper, who has won the title of "Funniest Actress in New York," has appeared on "Showtime at the Apollo," "Comedy Central," and MTV. Her humor deals with many relevant topics, including what it's like being an African American female trying to make it in a field that is dominated by white males. Her appearance is co-sponsored by Women of Color.

Mayor Crabb was named the "Most Valuable Public Official in the Nation at the Local Level" in 1989 by Crain's City and State magazine. She has also gained national prominence as an advocate for jobs, economic development, child care, housing, the arts, and affirmative action.

During her nine-year tenure as Binghamton's chief executive, Mayor Crabb's administration has been recognized by several national organizations, including 1984 and 1990 honors for the City of Binghamton in the U.S. Conference of Mayors National Livability Awards contest; a 1987 Financial Leadership Award for Mayor Crabb from the United States Conference of Mayors; Binghamton's 1988 recognition by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development for effective housing program implementation; and Binghamton's status as a finalist in the National Civic League's American City competition in 1990.

Crabb is a past president of the New York State Conference of Mayors. She currently serves as a trustee of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, as a member of the conference's housing and economic development committees, and as chair of its arts, culture, and recreation committee. She also serves as a member of the New York State Job Training Partnership Council and the Economic Development Council.

A former educator, Crabb also serves on the advisory board of the State University of New York at Binghamton's Center for Leadership Studies.

Susan Hart holds the distinction of being the first woman assigned to serve with the United States Coast Guard on a buoy tender ship. A physician's assistant at Delaware Valley Hospital, she has also done medical missionary work on American Indian reservations and in the mountains of Haiti and Bulgaria.

Mary Ellen Duncan was named the eighth president of Delhi Tech last May by the State University Board of Trustees. Her appointment followed recommendations from Chancellor Bruce Johnstone and the Delhi College Council.

Since assuming leadership of the college on August 15, Duncan has reached out to meet all campus employees and explore all facets of campus operations. Those efforts have helped her form some solid opinions about Delhi and its potential. "People are concerned about the difficult challenges that will confront us in the coming decade," Duncan says. "However, it is also clear that Delhi's greatest assets are its faculty and staff. They are a dedicated group of people who are committed to developing the skills necessary to make Delhi one of the best two-year colleges in America."

Duncan was dean of planning and development at Catonsville Community College in Baltimore, Maryland, prior to being named president at Delhi. From September 1989 to September 1990, she also held the position of interim president at Catonsville.

Her administrative career also included service as director and then dean of institutional development at Tri-County Technical College in Pendleton, South Carolina, from 1983 to 1988. Prior to that, she served as an associate and director of the Eastern Regional ACCTion Center from 1976 to 1982.

Duncan's teaching career included appointments as an English instructor at Tri-County Technical College and as an English and Latin teacher at West Islip Public Schools, New York.

She holds a bachelor's degree in English and education from St. John's University, a master's degree in curriculum development and supervision from the University of Connecticut, and a doctoral degree in administration and curriculum development from the University of Connecticut.

UFO Coverup Will Be Subject Of March 29 Lecture

"UFOs: The Hidden History," a 90-minute lecture and slide show concerning a U.S. government cover-up on UFOs, will be given by Robert Hastings on March 29 at 8 p.m. in the Farrell Hall Theater. Hastings lecture is based on previously classified documents that have been secured via the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) by several researchers and are now available to the public.

In a nutshell, these documents indicate, beyond a reasonable doubt, that UFOs—"Flying Saucers"—do indeed exist, and despite public denials by official government spokesmen over the years, these mysterious objects are of the greatest concern to the highest levels of the U.S. Air Force and the intelligence community.

Further, a number of these documents refer to UFOs repeatedly violating highly sensitive airspace over nuclear weapons sites, including research labs like Los Alamos and nuclear missile silos. Other documents concern attempted aerial intercepts of UFOs by military jet aircraft. So far as is known, all of these attempts have been unsuccessful.

One FBI memorandum, dated March 22, 1950, and directed to then FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, reports that flying saucers had crashed in New Mexico and been secretly recovered by the U.S. Air Force. The memo states that aboard the craft were found "bodies of human shape but only three feet tall."

This memo is one of approximately 800 FBI documents concerning UFOs obtained through the FOIA by Dr. Bruce Maccabee, an optical physicist employed by the U.S. Navy. The majority of the CIA UFO documents now available to the public were first released to W. Todd Zechel, a former Army Security Agency employee and founder of a UFO research group called Citizens Against UFO Secrecy (CAUS).

Hastings, an independent UFO researcher and lecturer, says that his interest in UFOs began in 1967 when he was present at an air traffic control tower at Malmstrom Air Force Base, near Great Falls, Montana. "Five UFOs were tracked on radar for several minutes," he recounts, "and jets were launched from Malmstrom to attempt an intercept of them. I later learned from Air Force sources that as the jets closed in, the objects left the area at an extremely high rate of speed—estimated to be 5,000 mph—far beyond the capability of any conventional aircraft."

Since that time, Hastings has devoted countless hours to researching UFOs and to efforts to bring before the public the facts about them that have been suppressed by the U.S. government.

Hastings believes that the government should open its files on UFOs. "I guess you could say that I'm a political activist," he says. "The intelligence community is the chief repository of information about UFOs and I am taking a politicized approach to getting that information out in the open, by publicly challenging the ongoing government secrecy."

"There is an abundance of evidence at this time of a continuing cover-up," he says. "I believe that the government's policy on UFOs is very short-sighted—to keep the public so totally in the dark regarding seemingly vital information that affects not only Americans, but the entire human race."

Hastings, an electron microscopist from Albuquerque, New Mexico, spends several weeks a year on the road, lecturing on UFOs. He has spoken at over 200 colleges and universities nationwide.

"I'm not on a romantic quest," he summarizes, "and I've got no illusions about one person being able to change the government's policy of secrecy on UFOs. Basically, I'm intensely committed to bringing the facts before the public. I believe that we are on the threshold of an extremely exciting period in the history of mankind. Only time will tell."

COMEDIAN CALFA IN LITTLE THEATER MARCH 28

Comedian George Calfa will appear on March 28, at 8:30, in the Farrell Hall Theater.

Calfa has performed at many major comedy nightclubs, including Catch a Rising Star, The Comic Strip, and The Village Gate. He is also a regular on the college comedy circuit.

GLOBETROTTER'S LEMON TO TESTIFY AT TECH

Meadowlark Lemon of the Globetrotters will be on campus Friday, March 13, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in the Farrell Hall gym to give his personal testimony and a basketball demonstration. The Delhi College Interfaith Council is helping to sponsor this program, and everyone is welcome to attend.

Basketball Honors Roll In For Delhi Tech Broncos

Accolades are rolling in for Delhi Tech's men's basketball team, which recently completed the most successful regular season in Delhi history.

Tim Reynolds, a senior from Middletown, was named Region III and Mountain Valley Conference Player of the Year. Delhi Tech head coach Gary Cole also captured regional and conference coach of the year honors.

Reynolds and Cole are just part of the Delhi success story. Sam Allen, a senior from Manhattan, was named a first-team Region III all star for the second consecutive year. Melvin Hathaway, a freshman from Lansingburgh, was a second-team all-region pick. Bob Law, a senior from South New Berlin, was a third-team selection.

Their performances helped lead Delhi to a 25-3 regular season record and a number-two ranking in the most recent National Junior College Athletic Association Division

III poll. Delhi is the top-rated Division III college in Region III and earned the number-one seed for the regional finals March 7-8 in Syracuse. The Broncos also captured their first-ever Mountain Valley Conference Championship with Reynolds, Allen, and Hathaway earning all-conference honors.

Reynolds emerged as one of the leading scorers in the nation this year, averaging 29.4 points per game. He also rewrote the Delhi record book by breaking the college's single-season scoring record, by hitting over 40 percent of his three-point attempts, and by scoring 40 or more points in a game five times.

Allen, who was also named to the NJCAA Division III All-Tournament team in 1991, has been a steady force over the last two seasons for Delhi. This year he finished as the Broncos second leading scorer and rebounder, averaging 13.8 points and 8.8 rebounds a game.

Hathaway is Delhi's "chairman of the boards," pulling down 9.8 rebounds a game. He was a key offensive contributor as well, averaging 13.3 points a game.

Law is a long-distance marksman. He connected on over 30 percent from three-point range while averaging 10 points a game for Delhi.

Cole earned Region III coach of the year honors for the second straight season. Cole guided the Broncos to their most successful season ever and a second straight berth in the NJCAA finals. Delhi finished fifth at the national tournament in 1991.

Delhi's 25-3 mark lifts Cole's 12-year career record at Delhi to 186-131. His career mark now sits at 232-182 and includes three years as head coach and athletics director at Indiana Institute of Technology in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Cole has also served as Delhi Tech athletics director since 1985.

THE FINAL EIGHT

More than 70 teams from around the country started basketball play last fall with their sights set on Delhi and the 1992 NJCAA Division III finals. Only an elite eight remain today:

- EASTFIELD COLLEGE
- MONTGOMERY COMMUNITY COLLEGE
- ONONDAGA COMMUNITY COLLEGE
- COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF RHODE ISLAND
- SULLIVAN COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE
- STATE UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY AT DELHI
- UNION COUNTY COLLEGE
- WESTERN WISCONSIN TECHNICAL COLLEGE

Proclamation

Whereas: The State University College of Technology of Delhi is a vital local resource; and

Whereas: The Delaware County Chamber of Commerce is committed to promoting resources such as the college; and

Whereas: That commitment brought the National Junior College Athletic Association Division III Basketball Championship to Delhi for the first time ever in 1991; and

Whereas: The event was such a success that the Chamber and the College extended their partnership to bring the tournament back to Delhi in 1992; and

Whereas: This tournament is an outstanding example of how the area can achieve exposure at the national level; and

Whereas: The tournament provides the area with a positive economic boost; and

Whereas: The tournament also gives local residents an opportunity to view a national championship event first-hand; therefore be it

Resolved: That I, Velma Clark, Supervisor of the Town of Delhi, proclaim March 15-21, 1992, NJCAA Division III Basketball Championship Week in the Town of Delhi; and be it further

Resolved: That I welcome all the visiting players and fans to our great town; and be it further

Resolved: That I extend special congratulations to the Delhi Tech Broncos for qualifying for the tournament and wish them much success in their quest for the national championship.

Sports Programs Thrive At Delhi

Delhi's commitment to educational and athletic excellence results in success at all levels

Delhi Tech is extremely proud to again host the NJCAA Division III Men's Basketball Finals.

After all, Delhi is fast becoming a national power at the Division III level.

For example, the men's cross-country team captured the first NJCAA Division III Team Championship last fall. Coach Jerry Kilmer was also named Region III Coach of the Year.

Delhi's indoor and outdoor track, men's basketball and golf teams were also represented at the NJCAA Championships last season.

That's the kind of broad-based success Delhi's athletic programs have and are enjoying.

Basketball has reached new heights this season. The Broncos, fresh off a fifth-place finish in last year's national tournament, have consistently ranked among the nation's elite in 1991-92. Coach Gary Cole has earned Region III Coach of the Year each of the last two seasons.

The Lady Broncos are emerging as a regional basketball power as well and entered the season with five straight appearances in the Region III Final Four.

Facilities are one of the reasons behind Delhi's success. A mini-dome, which features an indoor track, gives Delhi a real advantage against the competition.

Delhi is also the only two-year college in the northeast with its own golf course. That highly rated facility is home to both the golf and cross-country teams.

A baseball and softball complex was recently built, and that's allowed Delhi to dedicate surfaces to its men's and women's soccer programs.

The Farrell Hall gymnasium, site of the NJCAA tournament, received a major facelift this year.

Training facilities are unequalled. The fitness center is one of the most popular facilities on campus, featuring specialized weight lifting equipment, free weights, exercise bicycles and rowing machines. Toning equipment was added to the line-up this year.

Topping it all off is Delhi's showcase facility—the college aquatics center. Opened in 1988, this facility houses a 25-meter swimming pool, racquetball courts, and saunas.

Delhi's athletic staff makes the program go as well. Delhi is one of the few two-year colleges that has a full-time coaching staff, and that group of professionals is dedicated to helping students succeed in the classroom and in the athletic world.

In short, Delhi's commitment to educational and athletic excellence results in success at all levels.

Proclamation

Whereas: The State University College of Technology is an important community asset; and

Whereas: The Delaware County Chamber of Commerce has done much to spread the word about our great village; and

Whereas: The College and the County Chamber have joined forces to bring the National Junior College Athletic Association Division III Men's Basketball Championship to our community; and

Whereas: This special event brings national attention and stature to the Village of Delhi; and

Whereas: The tournament will bring teams and fans from around the country to Delhi for what we hope is the first of many visits; and

Whereas: The Delhi Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations are making special efforts during the tournament to showcase the many assets that Delhi has to offer; and

Whereas: This tournament provides an economic stimulus to the area economy; therefore be it

Resolved: That I, Marc Guy, Mayor of the Village of Delhi, officially proclaim March 15-21, 1992, as NJCAA Division III Basketball Championship Week in the Village of Delhi; and be it further

Resolved: That I extend best wishes for success to all the participating teams, and particularly the Delhi Broncos as they vie for their first-ever national basketball championship.

Dated this 11th day of March, nineteen hundred and ninety-two.

DELHI TECH BRONCOS

STATE UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY AT DELHI, NEW YORK

DISTRICT VII

REGION III

It's been a record-breaking season for Delhi Tech. The 28-3 Broncos, ranked number two in the nation, have set a school record for victories while capturing Delhi's first-ever Region III and Mountain Valley Conference Championships. Head Coach Gary Cole was also named Region III Coach of the Year for the second consecutive season.

All-American candidate Timothy Reynolds is one of the country's most explosive scorers, averaging 29.4 points a game. But he gets plenty of help from a supporting cast that includes All-Region selections Sam Allen (13.8 points, 8.8 rebounds), Bob Law (10 points a game) and Melvin Hathaway (13.3 points, 9.8 rebounds).

EASTFIELD COLLEGE HARVESTERS

EASTFIELD COLLEGE
TEXAS

REGION V

The road to a second-straight appearance in the Division III finals was far from easy for Eastfield College of Texas. First, they lost All-American candidate Cedric Pellum to a mid-season knee injury. Then, the Harvesters were pressed to the limit before beating Richland College, 108-103 in overtime to qualify for the nationals.

Coach Robert Flickner leads a program that has now won 10 straight Metro Athletic Conference titles. The Harvesters averaged nearly 95 points a game en route to an 18-11 mark this season. Freshman Terence Williams is the Eastfield's top scorer at 16.3 points a game while 6'6" senior Audry Dillard averages nearly 12 points a game.

MONTGOMERY COLLEGE GRYPHONS

MONTGOMERY COMMUNITY COLLEGE GERMANTOWN, MARYLAND

DISTRICT V

REGION XX

Montgomery Community College of Germantown, Maryland is one of the tournament's giant killers. The Gryphons qualified for their second consecutive trip to Delhi by knocking off third-ranked Howard Community College, 75-72, in the district final.

Coach Steve Hobson looks to senior Diallo Nelson and freshman Jerome Williams for scoring strength, with the pair averaging 19.3 and 18.5 points per game respectively. The Gryphons are tough on the boards as well, with Williams averaging 16.2 rebounds a contest and Jared Lacina hauling down over 11 a game.

DISTRICT I

REGION III

Seventh-ranked Onondaga Community College is an offensive force. Onondaga averaged over 96 points a game en route to a 26-8 record and a second-place finish at the Region III Championship.

Coach Michael Rizzi has blended a talented crop of freshmen with senior sensation Devin Warmack. Warmack, the nation's third leading scorer, also ranked as the Region III leader in assists. Freshman E. J. Curtis is one of the country's top marksmen, hitting nearly 50 percent from three-point range.

RHODE ISLAND KNIGHTS

COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF RHODE ISLAND

DISTRICT VI

REGION XXI

The Rhode Island Knights and Coach Vin Cullen have barely missed a beat after finishing second at last year's inaugural Division III Championship. This year's edition of the Knights ranked fifth nationally and posted a 23-7 mark, which pushed Cullen over the 500-career-victory plateau.

The Knights' employ an "up, up, up tempo" offense that led the nation in scoring at 100.5 points a game. Senior forward Brendan Murphy is the "tower of power," leading the team in scoring (22.3 points) and rebounding. Freshman Brian DaCosta has been a key addition, ranking second in scoring and rebounding.

SULLIVAN GENERALS

SULLIVAN COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE
LOCH SHELDRAKE, NEW YORK

DISTRICT III

REGION XV

Sullivan County Community College has literally raced its way to the top of the polls. An up-tempo offense and unrelenting defense have paved the way to a perfect 32-0 season for Coach David Possinger's Generals.

The offense is talented and balanced, with six players averaging in double figures. Guard Donald Taylor leads the way at nearly 17 points a game. Forward Derrick Simmons is a force as well, averaging over 13 points and nearly eight rebounds a game. Forward Anthony Lynton (10.1 rebounds) anchors the nation's top defense, which yields only 52.9 points a game.

UNION COLLEGE OWLS

UNION COUNTY COLLEGE
CRANFORD, NEW JERSEY

DISTRICT IV

REGION XIX

If Cinderella's slipper fits any of the finalists, it would be Union County College of Cranford, New Jersey. The Owls rebounded from a 4-7 start to win 13 of their next 17 games and earn a regional tournament berth for only the second time in 24 years. Since then, they've posted three more wins, including an upset of sixth-ranked Hudson Community College and fourth-ranked Keystone Junior College to qualify for the Division III finals.

Senior Ponce Vines leads the way for Coach Kevin Duggan's Owls, averaging 21 points a game. Freshman Jamar Raymond is close behind, hitting for 19.8 points a game.

And Don't Miss The Post-Game Entertainment!

BOBBY HUNT

GREG MORTON

In keeping with the campus-wide support of the NJCAA Basketball Tournament, the Student Programming Board (SPB) will present two nights of live entertainment after the games. SPB President George Bain said that the shows will start about 30 minutes after the final games on Thursday and Friday nights. Showtime should be at 10:30 on both nights, barring any necessary overtime in the games.

Thursday night will feature the return of Bobby Hunt, the One-Man Circus. Bobby will be returning to our campus for the second time with his blend of daredevil acrobatics, bicycle stunts, magic, and comedy. A former star of Ringling Brothers Circus, Bobby now tours the country as a solo act, doing about 300 dates per year on college campuses and nightclubs.

Bobby will also perform during half time at several of the games on Thursday. Hunt, whose parents are both also circus performers, asked us to remind students that he gives away $100 to a lucky audience member at each show he does.

On Friday night, the SPB will be presenting the unique comedy of Greg Morton. Programming Board comedy aficionados say Morton is the funniest, most outrageous comedian they've seen in the past year. Aside from comedy, Morton also does quite a bit of voice-over work on Saturday morning cartoons. He is currently the voice of ABC-

TV's "Hammerman" cartoon on Saturday mornings.

Opening for Morton will be comedian Ricie Byrne.

Do not miss the Greg Morton comedy show. He is the most outrageous comedian to appear on our campus this year. As a matter of fact, the SPB urges everyone to attend these shows after the tournament. Have some fun; stay up on campus after the basketball action—you won't regret it!

Black History Month Celebration A Success

The SUNY Delhi Campus recently completed its most extensive and successful celebration of Black History Month. The programming coordinated by the Student Programming Board and the Black Student Union included a series of video presentations seen on EYE-TV, a group of contemporary films by African American directors shown in the Farrell Hall Theater, and a series of dynamic and relevant live presentations.

The live programs opened with a concert and classroom visit by Mr. Kelly James, better known as Dr. Blue. Kelly, who appeared on our campus February 6, entertained a crowd in the Farrell Hall Theater with blues classics, originals, and a little history lesson on the origins and importance of the blues in our culture.

Thursday, February 13, marked the return of Michael Friend and the Soul In Motion Players to our campus with the presentation of "We Are Africa." The newly revamped version of Friend's contemporary urban drama included traditional African song, dance, as well as audience participation. Also included in the presentation was some original rap by the Soul In Motion Players. Members of the cast made sure that everyone in attendance got involved and spent a great deal of time talking with audience members after their performance.

Of special note to the Soul In Motion appearance was the hosting of over 20 Walton High School students and their advisers on our campus by members of the Black Student Union. BSU members prepared an ethnic meal for their visitors and engaged in an honest and frank exchange of ideas and beliefs on such subjects as racial prejudice, stereotypes, and how to best achieve harmony among people of all races. As a follow-up to this program, Black Student Union members will soon be visiting Walton High School to continue the educational work they have begun with these interested high school students.

The keynote program of Black History Month took place on February 19 with the visit of Roger G. Smith, star of TV's "A Different World" and several Spike Lee movies. With the help of technical director Wesley Groves, Smith presented his highly acclaimed one-man show "Fredrick Douglass Now!" This innovative multi-media presentation combined readings from Douglass' writings and speeches, and an original Fredrick Douglass Rap written by Smith.

After the presentation, Smith spoke at length with audience members about his work as an actor, writer, and historian. Smith surprised many in the audience by telling them that not only had Fredrick Douglass spoken in Delhi during his lifetime, but that Delhi was a stop on the Underground Railroad used by escaping slaves in the 1800s.

Student Programming Board members and the Black Student Union are to be congratulated for the diversity and relevance of programming presented during this month. The programs not only provided entertainment, but also educated those who attended on important issues involved in African and African American History. The linkage formed between area high school students and BSU members is also noteworthy of special praise.

The goal of these presentations is to promote greater understanding and appreciation of African and African American culture among all people. It is hoped that in gaining this appreciation and understanding, greater respect and racial harmony can be achieved.

WINTER WEEKEND REVIEW

Which One Was Funnier?

BY GEORGE BAIN, SPB PRESIDENT

Usually, on the Monday morning after a major weekend, students across campus can be heard discussing the weekend in terms of "good" or "bad." This was not the case for Winter Weekend '92. The prevailing question was "Which one was funnier?" The answer to that, of course, depends on the person.

The weekend was kicked off Friday night with the Sam Kinison concert. "The concert ran smoothly—without a glitch," said Marty Greenfield, the SPB adviser. "Attendance was average, and everybody had a good time." Nussbaum, the opening comedian was very talented. Everyone agreed that he was hilarious. Sam Kinison was very funny, too, at least I thought, but that opinion is not a popular one on this campus. I, along with about a hundred people, spent an hour and ten minutes on the floor trying to catch our breath from laughing so hard. The other seven hundred sat while half of Sam's act went right over their heads, signifying that either the mean I.Q. of the audience was well below that of a potato, or they haven't been watching the news lately. Your own ignorance and apathy is to blame if you didn't understand who he was talking about. (Paul Tsongas is a Presidential candidate, Jeffrey Dahmer eats people after he kills them, Jimmy Swaggert is a televangelist who picks up whores, George Bush is the first U.S. President to vomit on a Japanese Prime Minister.)

Saturday night belonged to Joey Vega. The Latin comedian touched on many interesting topics. He loved the crowd, and they loved him! His interaction with the crowd was so good that he stayed for an extra fifteen minutes.

The Bizarre Film Festival was an interesting experiment. Attendance was poor, but the program was excellent. The festival featured many old cartoons, such as "The Fresh Vegetable Mystery," and films including a "Dating Do's and Don't's" flick that was actually shown in high school health classes.

"Thelma & Louise" was shown on Sunday night to two full-capacity crowds. A great way to end a successful weekend!

Winter Weekend '92 was sponsored by the Student Programming Board. The members of this committee worked long and hard to bring these events to you. Many thanks to those who had a part, both great and small, in the success of Winter Weekend.

A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Spring Play

Appendicitis strikes key actor before opening

BY MARY BADGLEY

Bill Campbell was wrapping up what he thought would be the end of rehearsals for the Spring musical, "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum," when he received a disturbing phone call the Wednesday morning of dress rehearsal. Douglas Schmidt, who was to play Hysterium, slave to Domina, had an appendicitis attack and would not be able to play the role.

Without panic, Campbell had to find a replacement—someone who could memorize 80 pages of lines in 24 hours and perform them properly. Michael White amply filled this position and was outstanding in his performance. Opening night he used a prop to ease him through his lines, but Friday and Saturday this was not necessary. Michael was given a standing ovation for pulling off what an average person would see as being next to impossible. Excellent job, Mike.

Campbell, director of all theater productions at Delhi, again succeeded in entertaining all who attended. It takes a certain talent to choose a play that will entertain the diverse crowd on our campus, as well as the young and the old from the town itself. Campbell achieved this. The show sold out both Friday and Saturday night, and the overall reaction of the audience was responsive and blissful.

The entire cast did a wonderful job—with each individual performance and working as a group. There was a tremendous amount of energy displayed on stage, and I found myself questioning where they were all finding it. It had come from five consecutive weeks of rehearsal that lasted approximately three to four hours per night. All cast members should be congratulated, not only for a superb performance, but for the amount of time put forth to make it all happen.

Garrett Marino, who took on two roles, playing Prologus, an actor, and Pseudolus, slave to Hero, was incredible. This being the second play of his career, it is easy to recognize his natural talent. All of the performers deserve the utmost recognition, especially Rebecca Manganaro who played Senex's wife.

Stephen Dresbach, who played Hero, and Brian and Darian Angelo were hysterical, playing a number of different roles. Stacey Haley projected the perfect image of Philia, a virgin in the play. Filto Tas, John Roth, Lindsley Smallwood, and Eddie Aro, along with the entire chorus, stick out in my mind when thinking back on the musical. The choreography was done very well by John Luks and his wife JoAnna Schell-Luks.

Good job everyone!

Movie Special Effects Coming To Delhi

The movie special effects group, K.N.B. EFX, will put on their exciting, highly visual lecture presentation in Farrell Hall Theater on April 1, at 8:30.

K.N.B. EFX Group was formed in February 1988 by Robert Kurtzman, Greg Nicotero, and Howard Berger. After lending their talents to some of the top genre films in recent years, the three decided to combine their efforts—the result being an effects company that has capitalized on the strengths of three talented individuals.

In their most ambitious project to date, "Tales From the Darkside—The Movie," K.N.B. had three segments to create effects for: the first, "Lot 249," a 2000-year-old mummy was resurrected; for the second story, "Cat From Hell," K.N.B. designed just that; and the third segment, "Lover's Vow," required a gigantic, animatronic gargoyle and its offspring. "Tales From the Darkside—The Movie" stands as a showcase for the diverse talents of K.N.B.

Their involvement in many other projects such as "Halloween 5," "Texas Chainsaw Massacre 3," and "Bride of ReAnimator" has made them veterans of horror at a relatively young age. Their name is now known and respected by many of the genre-related magazines. When "Fangoria," the leading genre publication, began making films, they signed on K.N.B. for the first three: "Mindwarp," "Children of the Night," and "Army."

Their work has also caught the attention of several noted industry professionals outside of the horror genre. Kevin Costner chose K.N.B. to create an array of artificial buffalo for his directorial debut, "Dances With Wolves." Rob Reiner called upon the group to help bring Stephen King's "Misery" to life. For "Misery," they provided lifelike duplicates just as they did for Carl Reiner in his latest film, "Sibling Rivalry." In Ron Underwood's just released comedy, "City Slickers," K.N.B. created the realistic birth of Billy Crystal's sidekick calf, Norman. And, for the upcoming comedy, "Pure Luck," K.N.B. made Martin Short "blow up" from a bee sting.

Currently in the works are Sam Raimi's latest installments to the "Evil Dead" series, "Army of Darkness," Wes Craven's latest creation in "People Under the Stairs," and hilarious sight gags for a new comedy, "The Nutty Nut."

Robert, Greg, and Howard continually strive to create the most realistic and professional make-up effects possible. They have come a long way in a short period of time, being involved in over 45 projects in the last three years.

For their college speaking tour, K.N.B.'s presentation reveals the behind-the-scenes magic of Hollywood monster making and special effects. This special presentation includes actual working props and prosthetics, as well as riveting film clips of their creatures in action.

Censorship Is Un-American

How often do you buy a record and find on it parental advisory explicit lyrics? Often when I go to the record store and buy a record, with it I get a small sticker advising me of the lyrical content of my purchase. This doesn't attract too much of my attention for the sticker is fairly unobtrusive. However, as of about six months ago, the stickers have disappeared and in their place came permanent advisories printed on the record cover itself.

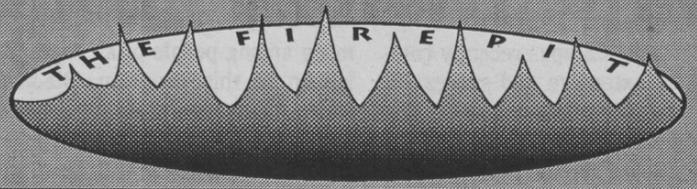

The presence of censorship in the music industry is nothing new. Censorship has always been an evil monster in the eyes of creative artists. But today not only does censorship hinder the artists' music, but it also scars the cover art by which the music group is represented. The beautiful and intricate record covers are now blemished with a permanent mark of injustice.

It is true that not all records are plagued with the new form of censorship. It is only those whose lyrics are not acceptable to certain politically conservative groups. But who is to determine what is acceptable and what is not acceptable? Is it possible for censorship to be biased? I think so. So perhaps we can do away with censorship and avoid unnecessary obstruction and prejudice in music.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

In a completely biased article in last month's Campus Voice, Elise Habra berated the entire male population of Delhi College.

In her article, Miss Habra attacked the men of Delhi for staying in relationships they had built previously at home. Many of Delhi's male students enjoy loving relations with fine young ladies from home, and to chastise them for doing so is ridiculous. For Miss Habra to assume that just because a young lady does not go to an upstate school, she is, as Miss Habra puts it, "not even doing anything" is absurd.

Upstate schools are not the only schools available, and to think that girls at home aren't going to a local school that is as good as, if not better than Delhi, shows Miss Habra's completely one-sided point of view.

As for the question, "Why do men stay with girls they can't see all that often?"—maybe that's just the reason. Having a person around 24 hours a day can drive anyone crazy, and judging by some of the women I have encountered on this campus, dating a girl from home sounds like a pretty good idea.

How is it that only men are blamed for cheating? Cheating is a common occurrence here at Delhi, and I'm not condoning it, but to say it's only the men who cheat is an immature stereotype. Miss Habra seems to overlook the fact that many of the women here at Delhi also have relationships at home that they suddenly forget about the minute someone buys them a drink. As for feeling used the next morning, there's a simple solution for that: have some restraint, and just maybe a little bit of self-respect.

It amazes me that some of the women here at Delhi expect a lasting relationship to start from a one-night stand. A special relationship must be carefully built over time, and jumping into bed on the first night is simply a mistake. If a one-night stand is what you want, fine, but don't expect to live happily ever after.

With a complete absence of malice, Miss Habra verbally attacked the aforesaid girls from home by calling them ugly and fat. She also portrayed the men of Delhi who are under 20 years of age as confused and immature. Where does Miss Habra get off attacking an entire population of men? For one individual to be so bitter to so many people is shocking to say the least. I honestly hope Miss Habra finds what she is looking for in a man. Maybe she should try someone from home.

Sincerely,
 Michael Vergis

A Riddle

John's mother died three days before yesterday. Today is Saturday. John found out she died two days after her death. Then his Aunt died the following week, three days before his mother died. The time the funeral took place was in the evening. After his mother was buried, he found out the day she died was her birthday.

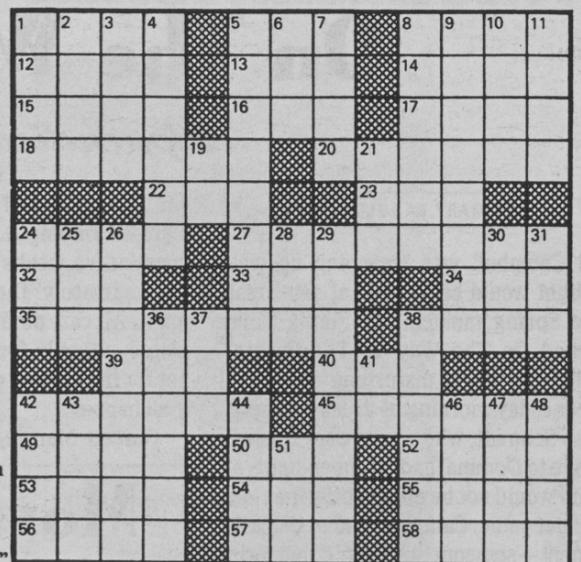

QUESTIONS:

1. What day did his mother die?
2. What day did his Aunt die?
3. What day did John find out his mother's death?
4. What day did John attend his mother's funeral?

Spring Fever

BY CHRIS SCANLON

Well, here we are at Delhi with Spring right around the corner. For some, the musky smell of love is in the air; for others, all that Spring will bring is allergies and more parking tickets.

As most of you men (and I use the term in its most liberal form) have by now noticed, there is a somewhat lopsided ratio of males to females here at Delhi. This means that only a finite number of guys will actually be able to participate in the upcoming season of lust. So, here I come to the rescue of the un-mated and probably very tense male members of our college community. I give you, free of charge, a condensed overview of what the beautiful and severely under-populated women of Delhi look for in a potential partner. I have roamed far and wide and at great risk of personal injury for these insights, so appreciate my gift, men of Delhi.

In the interest of protecting the women I interviewed from unworthy scum who might use specific information to diabolical ends, I disguised the true identities of my female sources.

Some of the more popular qualities, as stated by "Irma," and supported by most of her sisters, were the following: sensitivity, a good sense of humor, honesty, caring, and giving. Oddly enough, when asked about looks, many said that while they were an initial attractor, they soon lost their importance. "Bambi" tells us, "You meet guys one of two ways: you listen to him speak and then begin to notice him; if you like him, he becomes more attractive. Or you appreciate a guy for his looks, begin to have a conversation with him, at which point he loses his attraction if he acts like a jerk. So looks really don't matter."

Twice mentioned was "someone you can eat dinner with." Apparently many of your table manners are not up to snuff, so let's get those elbows off the table and chew with our mouths closed (what "Faith" told me she really meant was "someone who she could be herself with, even eat with").

Women were overwhelmingly opposed to "stupid drunks"; "fun drunks" were their preference. When I asked "Bertha" about financial status, I was informed that while it wasn't all that important that he should be wealthy, a man should be "responsible." What she meant to say (I know her well), was responsible enough to fix her broken car and give her lots of jewelry. "Emma" said, "Money, Yea." This was not the prevalent attitude (thank God for small favors) among our women.

Respect and loyalty—many of the girls I spoke with felt as though we men did not show that we cared for them in a capacity other than as sex objects. As evidence, most of them told me that all of them had had at least one boyfriend cheat on them. Similarly, they were all sick of guys who changed the way they acted in front of their friends. (That's the loyalty part, for those of you who are a little slow.) So—be still your cheating hearts, and start treating your girlfriends with the respect they deserve.

Wow, don't you feel like you just read a women's magazine? I feel like I should follow this up with an article about "flattening your buns."

THE LONELY CHILD

*A life to give is a gift of God Children are the future of humanity.
Killing is opposed the commandments of life.
Thou shall not kill should remain pure and alive, condemn those who refused to follow, as we deliver.
Given birth is consider miraculous
Some that get half way sometimes, give a life, but do not retain their own, and that day shall remember as their final day.
The life that gives is precious, surviving is a chance that we take every moment a day while we breathe and excel out.
The father that gives is unknown,
the mothers
that withheld are unreliable.
Taking another life is a major crime without suitable rights.
No one has the rights to take another life, but if the options are obscure they'll be the judge of their own crime.
Being molested or killed, so rape is a crime.
A life that's been taken away
cannot return,
Until the day we face our adversary.
And that day will be the judgment
day.*

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

WHY YOU SHOULD START PLANNING FOR RETIREMENT WITH YOUR EYES CLOSED.

For retirement to be the time of your life, you have to dream a little—about the things you've always wanted to do: travel, explore, start a business. Just imagine...

With a dream and a plan, you can make it happen. Your pension and Social Security should provide a good basic retirement income, but what about all those extras that make your dreams possible? You'll probably need some additional savings.

THE DREAM IS YOUR OWN. WE CAN HELP YOU WITH THE PLAN.

TIAA-CREF Supplemental Retirement Annuities (SRAs), tax-deferred annuities for people like you in education and research, are a good way to save for retirement and save on taxes now. SRAs are easy—you make contributions through your institution before your taxes are calculated, so you pay less tax now.

You pay no tax on your SRA contributions and earnings until you receive them as income. And saving regularly means your contributions and their earnings can add up quickly.

What else makes SRAs so special? A broad range of allocation choices, from the safety of TIAA to the investment accounts of CREF's variable annuity; no sales charges; a variety of ways to receive income, including annuities, payments over a fixed period, or cash. You may also be able to borrow against your SRA accumulation before you retire.*

All this, plus the top investment management that has helped make TIAA-CREF the largest retirement system in the country.

So start dreaming and planning for the time of your life. Because the sooner you start your SRA, the greater your savings and your retirement will be.

START PLANNING FOR THE TIME OF YOUR LIFE, TODAY.

Yankees For Sale?

(AP)—The New York Yankees, one of the most glamorous franchises in sports and estimated to worth as much as $300 million, may be up for sale.

Paramount Communications, owner of the New York Knicks, New York Rangers, and Madison Square Garden, said Thursday that "several of the Yankees' owners, including George Steinbrenner, have expressed an interest in discussing the sale of the team. However, we have not received any concrete proposals, nor have we made any."

Steinbrenner, who owns 55 percent of the team, confirmed the talks which reportedly began two weeks ago. "I met with them and discussed a lot of things," he said after a meeting of the Yankee partners.

"But to say George Steinbrenner is leaving baseball and the Yankees or giving up ownership of the Yankees is wrong. We had nice conversations that came about because one of our limited partners, who has wanted to sell his minority interest for some time, evidently had made contact with those people which is perfectly okay. He wondered if they would be acceptable as a limited partner."

Paramount is already involved with the Yankees through its ownership of the MSG Network and pays $50 million per year for cable television rights to the team's games through the year 2000.

"Obviously, we are concerned about the future of the team since we have a major investment in it through our long-term contract to broadcast Yankees' games over MSG Network," Paramount said.

"As a company with substantial interests in publishing and entertainment, including sports, we always explore every opportunity to expand those operations."

Steinbrenner seemed annoyed at Paramount's statement. "I really don't care what Paramount says. I think maybe they might have planted the story," he said.

While talks began regarding a minority interest sale, Paramount apparently wants more than that. Steinbrenner said he understood.

"I would think, knowing what a good thing the Yankees are, that if Paramount would be willing to buy such a small percentage, they would want more," he said.

Later, Steinbrenner issued a formal statement on the talks.

"I was approached by Paramount Communications, Inc.," he said. "I did not solicit them or their interest in discussing a sale of the Yankees. This was just one of many expressions of interest in the Yankees that I have received. It was purely at their request through Robert Nederlander that I met with them. They are accurate when they say that neither they or we have made or received any concrete proposals.

"Our relationship with Paramount through Madison Square Garden and through personal friendship have been of the highest caliber, and we hold them and their company in the highest esteem.

"It is unfortunate that stories from unknown origin and "informed" sources make two and two equal five. Certainly, we appreciate their interest in the team because of their long-term contract to broadcast Yankee games. Actually, we also have a major investment in MSG Network through our contract with them to pay us for our rights of games we televise."

Steinbrenner invested $2 million as part of a $12 million purchase of the team in 1973 from CBS. He gradually has increased his holdings over the years and was one of baseball's highest profile owners until he was barred from the game by commissioner Fay Vincent in August, 1990, because of his involvement with gambler Howard Spira. The Yankee front office has been in a state of turmoil ever since.

On Thursday, the Yankee partners unanimously approved Steinbrenner's son-in-law, Joseph Malloy, as managing general partner. The appointment must be approved by commissioner Fay Vincent, who previously rejected Daniel McCarthy and Leonard Kleinman for that position.

Woman Charges Mets With Sexual Harassment

(AP)—A New York woman has filed a complaint that she was sexually assaulted a year ago by three members of the New York Mets, St. Lucie, FL, police said last week.

Police received a complaint on March 3 from a woman in her late 20s who reported she was assaulted between 12:30 a.m. to 3:30 a.m. on March 30, 1991, at a residence, said police spokesman Lt. Dwight Hart.

Hart declined to release any information on whose residence it was, saying only that it was within the city limits of Port St. Lucie, a coastal city about 50 miles north of West Palm Beach.

The woman is a resident of New York state and a seasonal visitor to Port St. Lucie, spring training home of the Mets, he said.

Hart would not elaborate on why the complaint had been filed nearly a year after the alleged attack.

"We're not prepared to comment on that at this time," he said. "That is part of the ongoing investigation."

Hart also would not say whether those accused were still team members.

"We do have three names of individuals that were members of the New York Mets in March 1991, but we are not prepared to release the names at this time," he said. "We're not prepared to comment on whether or not they are or are not currently members of the New York Mets baseball team."

Police initially issued a brief statement late Thursday on the allegations.

"We've been anticipating it really blowing up," Port St. Lucie Mayor James Lawless told the St. Petersburg Times, which had been making inquiries about the case since Wednesday. "What we hate is, what if (this woman) is just taking a shot for some money. It's a year removed, and we're looking at this. It becomes very suspicious when you think of the salaries (ballplayers earn.) Yet she comes from a pretty good family, I hear."

Hart told The Port St. Lucie Tribune "the investigation is in its infant stages. There's certainly a lot of work to do in a case of this type."

Al Harazin, general manager of the Mets, had no comment on the report.

Yankees Howe Might Not Be Tried

(AP)—New York Yankees relief pitcher Steve Howe won't have to go on trial in federal court on misdemeanor drug charges until May 5, if then.

A federal magistrate last week postponed his trial until that date and said no decision would be made until April on whether his written confession could be used by prosecutors.

U.S. Magistrate Bart Erickson changed the March 30 trial date after denying a request by Howe's attorneys for access to federal government information about prosecution of minor drug cases.

His decision dampened hopes of defense lawyers Pat Sherlock and Steve Nardi to have the charges thrown out for what they believe is selective prosecution of Howe because he is a famous baseball player.

However, Nardi and Sherlock indicated they will use a March 30 hearing to present their arguments anyway to show that the federal government usually does not prosecute misdemeanor drug cases such as this.

A 45-minute hearing Wednesday centered on defense requests for information from prosecutors, most of which Assistant U.S. Attorney Kris McLean agreed to provide.

Howe, who was at spring training in Florida, is charged with attempting to buy on gram of cocaine December 19 of last year in Kalispell and with possessing two grams of cocaine between November 23 and December 19 in Whitefish, Montana. Howe and his family have an off-season home near Whitefish.

The relief pitcher has been suspended from baseball five times during his career for drug and alcohol abuse but made a successful comeback last year.

Nardi argued Wednesday for separate trials on the two charges.

He said Howe will admit he attempted to buy cocaine from an undercover agent for the Drug Enforcement Administration, but will claim entrapment by the federal officer.

To prove that contention, Howe will have to testify as to what happened December 19, Nardi said.

But Howe has said that he does not wish to take the stand in connection with the drug possession charge, so separate trials are a must, he told Erickson.

"He's in the classic spot of not being able to defend himself properly on both counts," Nardi said of Howe.

McLean argued that a single trial makes more sense because the two charges are so similar and Howe's confession deals with both.

Erickson said he would rule on the issue of separate trials by the middle of next week.

Attorneys for both sides will get a chance March 30 to argue whether a five-page written confession given by Howe after his arrest should be used as evidence in a trial.

Howe's lawyers claim he was coerced by federal drug agents into writing the confession, so it should be thrown out.

A copy of the document was given to Erickson, but he would not release it.

Gooden Looking Good

(AP)—Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets threw 52 pitches in a simulated game last week. Gooden is recovering from shoulder surgery last September to repair a partially torn right rotator cuff.

In a game against Mets batters Chris Donnels, Terrel Hanson, Alan Zinter and Orlando Mercado, Gooden had one strikeout and allowed three hits in mixing an assortment of fastballs, curves, and changeups.

"I was impressed with what I saw," Mets manager Jeff Torborg said. "He popped the ball and really had a good breaking pitch and change. In a situation like this, you look for power, and he showed it."

Gooden has started the season's first game for the Mets in six of his eight major league seasons, but doesn't expect it to make it seven of nine this year despite his improvement.

"Being ready by opening day is going to be tough. I'm not as strong as I normally would be at this time," Gooden said. "I didn't get really tired, but if we would have went for, lets say 60 pitches, it probably would have been too much."

FRANCO GETS CONTRACT EXTENSION

(AP)—John Franco last week agreed to a two-year contract extension with the New York Mets, making him the highest paid relief pitcher in baseball.

Franco, under the contract of the 1992 season, received a two-year extension that covers the 1993 and 1994 seasons. He will be paid $3.5 million for both the 1993 and 1994 seasons as well as a $1 million signing bonus for a total of $8 million over the length of the two-year deal. He will make $3 million for the 1992 season.

"I'm real happy knowing that I'm going to be in New York for the next three seasons," Franco said. "My ultimate goal is to be on a winner."

Franco, 31, has recorded 30 or more saves in each of the last five years. He also ranks 11th in major league history with 211 saves.

VIOLA GETS EARFUL FROM TWINS' KELLY

(AP)—Frank Viola faced the Minnesota Twins for the first time last week since the trade that sent him to the New York Mets in 1989, and caught an earful from his former manager.

"The only talk that was being done was by TK. He went non-stop," said Viola, referring to Twins manager Tom Kelly. "I was dying out there. And he doesn't forget anything either. He brought some stuff back that was '85, '86, '87."

"Frank was getting confused if he thinks that was heckling. That was nothing," said Kelly, whose team improved to 4-2.
