Some Action on Pollution!

By RONALD ALEXANDER

Clearly the next decade is one in which national priorities for the control of the quality of the environment must be established. Some of us think that it may already be too late to do very much about the environment. However, we are going to try.

Enclosed is a letter received by me from Representative Ottinger. Please feel free to contact me concerning this important matter. I am fortunate to be the Chairman of the Tompkins County Action for Fresh Air Education Committee. So here is your opportunity to directly influence the man at the helm.

Thank you for your patience.

November 26, 1969

Dear Sir:

I am writing to enlist your support for a very important effort now being made to encourage students on the Nation's campuses to become actively involved in the effort to preserve a liveable environment.

In spite of clear evidence of the rapid deterioration in environmental quality in this country, we so far have not been able to rally the kind of effort that is needed to reverse the trend. What we need and desperately — are new ideas, new enthusiasms and new directions. For this reason a number of us who have been concerned with the environment have now turned to the new generation of Americans to develop leadership. We have done so because we believe that this generation has already demonstrated a real commitment to improving the quality of life and the ability to redirect national priorities.

The first step in this new effort is the environmental "teach-in" recently announced by Senator Gaylord Nelson on the Nation's College campuses. The teach-in, now scheduled for April 23, 1970, is to serve as the vehicle through which concerned students can focus campus attention on the serious nature of the environmental crisis. Its goal is to have the students themselves mobilize a broad and effective program to bring about the changes in National attitudes, institutions and laws that are necessary.

This program is important not only because of the seriousness of the environmental threats that face us, but also because the concentration of effort upon a common problem offers a unique opportunity for the reconciliation that our society so badly needs today.

I have contacted students and student groups on all the campuses in New York State offering the assistance of my office in the development of the program. Until the student effort is organized, I will also undertake to help with coordination and the distribution of information through a series of special reports. I want to stress that I view this only as a temporary aid to help during the organizational phase. If the effort is to succeed, it will do so if it finds motivation and leadership on the campuses themselves.

I hope that you give this effort your strongest support.

Sincerely,

Richard L. Ottinger
Member of Congress

Parking

Since this is a community college, as the number of students increases, so does the number of cars. Cars are being parked in any spot that seems available; this is causing considerable congestion. The SCM parking lot is full; the streets are full of parked cars, and the overflow is spilling into the lots of some of the local merchants. Signs are beginning to pop up all over the halls and bulletin boards. Proper's and the Victory seem to be the ones most involved. Soon these merchants may find it necessary to have the local authorities tow away the illegally parked vehicles.

With the great congestion, it seems almost easier for one to park his car in the TC-3 parking lot on Conger Blvd. At least he won't have to worry about paying tow charges.

Library World

By NANCY CRAFT,
Librarian

There is both good and bad news for students this time.

The good news concerns our periodical holdings. The Board of Cooperative Education Services (BOCES) in Cortland has given us on a semi-permanent loan a collection of periodical backfiles on microfilm. There are approximately sixty titles and some cover periods of twenty years. In addition, we have a federal grant which will be used to buy microfilm to cover missing years and extra indexes for these items.

This will greatly extend the research capability for our students. As soon as possible we will create a comprehensive listing of periodical holdings available at TC-3, at Groton Public Library and through the Ithaca BOCES on interlibrary loan. We have a listing of Cortland holdings.

The bad news concerns overdue book fines. Revised library rules were put in your registration packet. Copies are available in the Library.

It has become necessary to revert to the traditional methods of control in order to assure maximum availability of the collection to the total school population. A school this size can never afford to buy multiple copies of most materials, and replacing strayed and stolen books uses budget funds which would be better used to buy new materials.

For a year and a half the school experimented with a policy of not charging overdue fines except for special and Reserve loans. Unfortunately the result is a long list of books overdue; five Reserve books, 233 general books, 7 Reference books, a tape recorder, and many periodicals missing from the collection at inventory time. That means almost 4% of the books bought last year had strayed from the collection before the end of 1969.

The new rules went into effect February 2, 1970. People still on the overdue list at the end of last semester were notified to return all materials before January 28th. Degrees and transcript records will be marked for hold if a student has unsettled debts to the school.

I feel this is a step backwards, but necessary at this moment in time. In the long run the character of the Library is always a result of what the student body wants it to be. Materials will remain available only as the students remain responsive to each other's needs. I hope we can try some form of this experiment again at a later date.

Literary Magazine

Just about every college in the country has a literary magazine or some outlet for its students' creative efforts. TC-3, at this time, does not have a literary magazine. The major outlets for the creative processes in our college seem to be the bathroom walls.

TC-3 will soon have a more legitimate literary outlet. Through the combined efforts of Sally Sanderson, Doug Phinney, and Mrs. Cooper, a tabloid is being created which will be combined with the "TC-3 Crucible." This tabloid will be composed solely of works done by students attending this college; either part-time or full-time.

Poems, short stories, and cartoons will be included in this new literary tabloid. All you need to do is submit your work to Sally Sanderson, Doug Phinney, Mrs. Cooper, or leave it in the "Crucible" office. We will try to print as much material as we can.

You do not have to join any organization or attend any meetings to have your material printed.

We have acquired very little material thus far. More literature is needed immediately for the first issue. Please submit your material prior to February 16 for the first issue. You must create individually to create together.

SUC at Brockport

The State University College at Brockport has announced that transfer students completing the Associate of Science (A.S.) degree who have been approved by the Faculty Committee on Admissions for September 1970 shall be granted full Junior academic standing by meeting the following conditions:

1. The two year institution from which the student transfers must certify that a minimum of 80% of the hours completed for the A.S. degree are in liberal arts and sciences.

2. The sending institution shall certify this for each A.S. candidate making application to Brockport.

The student will be required to include within his 120 hour minimum for graduation from Brockport at least one course in each of the five liberal arts core areas.

Brockport will also reward full Junior status for recipients of the Associate of Arts (A.A.) degree.

There are openings for approximately 1,400 new transfer students for September 1970.

For additional information, students may contact the Admissions Office at Brockport or consult with their advisor.

Easter Seal Drive

The Groton Chairman for the Easter Seals drive, is Kathy Shafer. Last year she did an excellent job with the drive and she will conduct this year's drive in much the same fashion as last.

Kathy will start the drive in less than a month, but she needs workers. Her biggest need right now are people in the Groton area who can call their neighbors and friends in the community. She would also like to invite the active participation of any clubs or organizations willing to help.

If you can aid the Easter Seals drive in Groton, please contact Kathy Shafer at the college.

Academic Process Hindered

By HAROLD K. HIGGINS

A new semester has come, and most of us are beginning to crack the books as we brace for the long hours of studying yet to come. Since we are a small community college with only one building, and no dormitories, the only seemingly logical place to study is the library.

There are certain basic criteria conditions necessary for proper studying. They are: comfortable seating, proper temperature, adequate lighting, and an absence of distracting noise. Our small but scientifically controlled library can claim adherence to all but the last of these basic requirements.

The distractions are caused by both mechanical and human noises. The mechanical sounds are those of telephones, typewriters, fan belt covers, and the xerox machine. If you listen to any of these sounds individually it may not sound so loud after all; but put them all together and you have one helluva noisy library.

Probably the most easily controllable noise is that made by the humans, and controlled it must be. The "TC-3 Student Guide 'under' Regulations of Conduct on the Tompkins-Cortland Community College Campus" states: "No student, faculty member, staff member, visitor, licensed, invitee, or trespasser shall be permitted to vandalize, pilfer, or in any way destroy school property, immobilize or otherwise interfere with the academic process. . ." Student is the first person mentioned in these regulations, and you as a student are the chief violator. You are interfering with the academic process and immobilizing the conscientious student.

There are penalties for not obeying these rules of conduct. For immobilization or interference with the academic process such as creating a nuisance, loitering, or unauthorized assembly, the penalty by the code of conduct is: "Suspension, expulsion, termination of employment, and/or complaint to civil authorities in accordance with due process."

So far this semester, like last, nothing has been done about the obvious breaking of the rules in our school. Many complaints, both verbal and written have been lodged with the library staff. Apparently these complaints have gone unheeded. The library staff and the Student Government continue to send memos back and forth, but nothing substantial has been done.

The Regulation of Conduct on the Tompkins-Cortland Community College Campus, (page 29) states, in reference to the maintenance of public order. "Enforcement shall be by the President of the College or his designee who shall inform in writing anyone accused of the charge against him and the penalty assessed." I encourage the President to enforce the penalties as stipulated in "TC-3 Student Guide."

The academic process is being hindered because everyone insists upon waiting for someone else to handle the situation. Are you, as conscientious students, willing to wait another semester or even one more day before you can be allowed to use a library that costs you a lot of tuition and your parents a lot of taxes? Are you going to sit on your ass and wait for someone else to protest the flagrant misuse of the library? Talk to the librarian, talk to your Student Government representatives, and talk to your President.

Something to Believe?

By BILL ROOK

This column will contain my views on campus and world news. It does not claim to be impartial in its views for I am radical in my views. If anyone has any questions on college policy or any comments on the views expressed in this column, please leave them in the "Crucible" office and I will give them my attention.

My first column will concern itself with Lt. Wm. Calley and the My Lai massacre.

I feel that Lt. Calley's guilt or innocence is relatively unimportant when compared with the other issues which are involved. Sgt. Kelley has become a scapegoat for the American Conscience. I do not believe that My Lai is an isolated instance. It may be on a larger scale than most but it is only one of many. America has no right to feel relieved because one man has been caught.

Lt. Calley was trained to kill. He was told that by killing the enemy, he was saving America from Communist subversion, and that he was keeping the Vietnamese people free. This kind of brainwashing, it is called indoctrination by the military, causes the individual to absolve himself of guilt by saying his actions were necessary and therefore justifiable. Before you say that such brainwashing does not exist, I must tell you that I have had an ex-serviceman admit to me that they were brainwashed. It is only when "the enemy" indoctrinates someone with his ideas that we call such actions brainwashing. If you want to blame someone for My Lai, it is necessary that you go higher up than Lt. Calley. He did not arm himself or teach himself to kill.

If something is to be done to prevent future incidents such as My Lai, it will be necessary for a change in national policy to occur. As long as a situation such as Vietnam exists, men will be placed in intolerable situations. A man who is trained and motivated to kill will probably do so. My Lai is a good example.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

Today, women are striving to be man's equal. This is great as far as wearing slacks is concerned, running for public offices, and obtaining jobs. But, there is a limit! Girls are just not built for standing up while going to the bathroom!!

During the last two weeks, the disgusting condition of the girls' lavatories has been brought to the attention of the President's office and Mr. Murphy. To this date NOTHING has changed - except the odor, and that has gotten WORSE.

We feel that our demand for clean, sanitary lavatories is not an unreasonable one. Students as well as faculty members, MUST use these rooms; but no one wants to in their present condition.

Something MUST be done immediately. Not only for comfort's sake but also for health reasons.

Sincerely,

The Girls Who Demand Clean Lavatories at TC-3

Hooray for the Establishment

By DICK POLLOCK

I have discussed with you men and women what you refer to as the "establishment". I not only have enjoyed these conversations, and I use that word advisedly, but also agreed with many of the thoughts you advanced.

Because of these discussions I have tried to look back at my children and grandchildren and tried to evaluate them. I can truthfully say that I am proud of them. I can see where they have fallen into acceptance of the great majority of precepts that my establishment established.

This in no way means that I have a closed mind to change. However, the criticism that I can readily accept only has meaning when it is constructive. Frankly, I think the right to find fault is only justified when a better course is offered.

This damning of the establishment is only meaningful when those who oppose it come up with a better concept of what we should be and have. Nature abhors a vacuum, and I am always left with the feeling that the malcontents in our present establishment create a vacuum but do not offer a solution. This is not a means to improve our society.

The veteran's box

By LEW SHULTS

This column shall appear not in subsequent issues but as the reporter finds information concerning reports and questions. If anyone has questions that may concern Veterans this column will gladly try to find a suitable answer. This column can be helped by questions from the student body and will be greatly appreciated. The questions may be submitted to myself or the Student Affairs Secretary in writing. It is the request of this columnist that they may be submitted prior to Thursday at two p.m.

Question: Do veterans have to pay tax on the money received from the "G.I. Bill"?

Answer: NO! It is actually a subsistence for education from the Federal government.

Question: When will the Veteran Scholarship examination be given again?

Answer: Sometime either in July or August of this year, according to Mr. Doty at the V.A. office.

'Monsters Threaten Mankind'

Recently Steppenwolf released a Capitol record which warns us of terrible monsters loose on American soil. These most horrible creatures pose a serious threat to people. Even so, as of yet, no direct effort to eliminate them has been initiated. What are we to do? Are we doomed?

These monsters were seen very early in American history, and their forces are constantly increasing. As the pilgrims landed on the United States' shores, these creatures were seen "burning witches" and "buying slaves." Shortly after this, again they were spotted as the civilized Eastern man moving westward. It was the monster who stole, pushed, and killed. Presently, monsters and their influence can be seen everywhere.

By no means is this threat; it has rampaged like a contagious disease. Can anyone honestly say that the monsters have not entered the walls of TC-3? Steppenwolf says that the monsters thwart freedom. Scale this down a bit. People have come to this college to exercise one of their freedoms. And they are being hampered by the monsters. Just one small example of their presence can be found in the library. This room was designed for several reasons. One of them was not for the inconsiderate, ruthless monsters to abuse through excessive conversation, laughter, and the misuse of facilities.

All is not lost though. If people would wake up, open their eyes and see, open their ears and hear, the monsters would almost surely fade away. It is our responsibility to seek out these creatures and destroy their power. Look around. Is your neighbor a monster? Are you?

P.S. Instead of dreaming the "Impossible Dream," why not work out the possible ones!

Counseling Services

TC-3 has counseling services designed to help you be as successful as possible during your stay here. The services are available for the asking on either an individual or group basis.

The services available fall into three general categories:

1. ACADEMIC

For what academic fields am I suited?

How to read efficiently and effectively.

How to take lecture notes.

How to write term papers.

How to prepare for, and take, exams.

2. VOCATIONAL

For what fields of work am I suited?

Which specific jobs within these fields appear to match my interests and abilities?

Do I have the personal (psychological) qualifications to enter a given occupation?

3. PERSONAL

Adjustment problems — what am I doing here; do I really want to be in college? I feel left out of things here, etc.

Home and family problems. I feel depressed.

I find it difficult to make friends.

I think I'm coming apart at the seams, etc.

The counseling services are offered on a voluntary basis — no one will force you to use them. Also, you need not have a deep, involved concern before seeking help.

To schedule an appointment, contact the secretary in the Student Affairs Office (3rd floor).

ORIENTATION

Freshman Comments

Question: What did you think of the registration procedure?

Steve Bostwick: It took longer than I thought it would, but it was fairly well organized.

Geraldine Jackson: Very nice, the staff personnel were very kind, helpful, and considerate.

Connie Devendorf: It was well organized.

Skip Benson: It was efficient, it was a hassle, but efficient. I think it would have helped some if the forms were sent out and done at home.

John Guley: It was easy — I have been through worse. The hard part was paying tuition. There were signs and the alphabet was well split up.

Charles Fish: Very smooth for a school, since I just started I figured it would be quite mixed up, but it was rather well organized.

Question: What was your reaction to the orientation program presented for freshmen?

Marianne Katherine Chort: Nothing was unusual if it was with friends — it makes you feel a little different with strangers.

Ronald Powell: It was different, I would like to know the reason behind orientation.

Glenn B. Henderson Jr.: Very interesting, I have been in one other. This one made more sense, more of a break down of barriers and ego dissolution.

 TC-3 beat Mohawk Valley 26-18 to boost its record to 2-1. Unbeaten Gary Atkins, 126 lbs., started the ball rolling with his third pin in as many matches. Clenching the meet was Greg Mack, 190 lbs. who decisioned Bill Stephens, 10-2.

came to grips with the Geneseo Gladiators, who are in the second year of this sport and now rank 0-4.

Pins for T C-3 were scored by co-captain Joe Longo of Ithaca, Fred Ott of Groton, and Greg Mack of Waverly. Tom Teeter got the decision in the 158, and Don Moroge of Geneseo got the decision over Mike O'Hara of Groton.

Moroge was taxed a point for stalling after O'Hara had aggressively battled from a deficit to tie 3-3. Moroge then made a quick take down and a predicament, piling up enough riding time for a 9-3 decision.

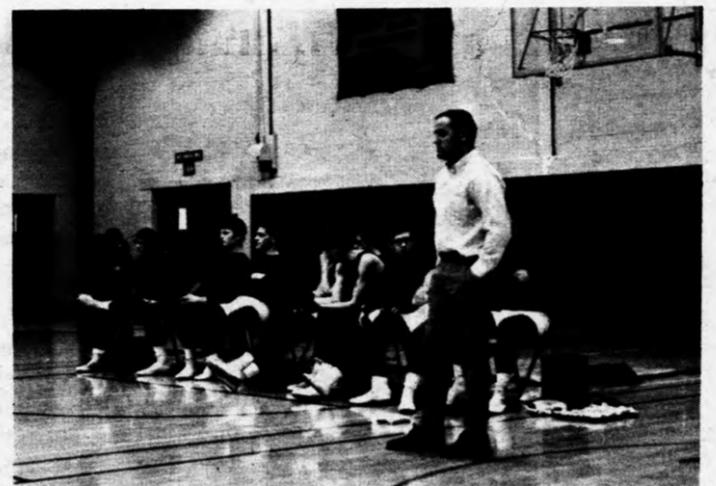

After being even with Craig Gallagher for two periods, Longo, who once wrestled for Ithaca High, gathered a second period nearfall. He escaped in the third. He then slammed his foe to the mats and pinned him with a headlock and a body press. In heavier weights, Ott and Mack made even shorter work of their foes.

McMullen had problems finding used wrestling mats for practice sessions, and it took three trips before he found someone willing to donate the much needed materials. Although the road to the opening was not paved with silk, the team went to battle enthusiastically and with excellent spirits.

NEWCOMERS WELCOME

The "T C-3 Crucible" is now in its second year at TC-3. Last semester we produced two issues. This semester we must produce five.

The "Crucible" hopes to perform three functions in the college: stimulate thought and conversation; disseminate news; and provide a forum for discussion and communication.

If you feel you would like to be a part of a growing paper in a growing college, then the "T C-3 Crucible" has a place for you.
