Open Access Policy of the State University of New York at Fredonia

The Faculty of the State University of New York at Fredonia is committed to disseminating its research and scholarship as widely as possible. For each manuscript deposited in the institutional repository, the author grants Fredonia nonexclusive permission to make available that article for the purpose of open access.

The policy will apply to scholarly articles published while the person is a member of the Faculty except for articles completed before the adoption of this policy and articles for which the Faculty member has entered into an incompatible licensing agreement.

After an article is published by the primary academic publisher, each Faculty member agreeing to deposit their work in the repository will make available an electronic copy of their full-text, peer-reviewed article at no charge to Daniel A. Reed Library.

Daniel A. Reed Library will make the scholarly article available to the public in an open-access repository, respecting all embargoes and restrictions by the primary academic publisher. Daniel A. Reed Library will be responsible for resolving disputes concerning the interpretation and application of the Open Access Policy and recommending changes to the Faculty. The policy will be reviewed and assessed by the Library Faculty after two years and changes made as needed.

Daniel A. Reed Library will provide the service that makes the policy as convenient for the Faculty as possible (e.g., conducting due diligence regarding embargoes, providing metadata, ensuring inclusion in Fredonia Faculty bibliographies, etc.).

This policy for The State University of New York at Fredonia is adapted in part from Open Access policies at other universities including SUNY Stony Brook, MIT, SUNY Brockport, etc.
