

To All Faculty & Staff

Dear Colleagues,

The Provost's Lecture Series in honor of Hispanic Heritage Month will host a talk by Dr. Juan Mestas.

A Stony Brook alum, Dr. Mestas is the Chancellor and Professor of Foreign Languages at the University of Michigan-Flint. Dr. Mestas is the author of two books, El Pensamiento Social de Jose Marti: Ideología y Cuestion Obrera (1993) and Centro de Gravedad (poems) (2003), and of numerous articles published in scholarly, educational, and literary journals. He is a former editor of several periodicals; in addition his poetry and short stories have been published in literary magazines and anthologies in Latin America and the United States.

Dr. Mestas will give a lecture entitled: "Somos Stony Brook! Celebrating the Latino Experience at Stony Brook University" this Wednesday, November 8, 2006 at 6:00 p.m. in Student Activities Center Auditorium. This talk is presented in association with Hispanic Heritage Month.

Please pass along this information to any students or community members you feel may be interested in attending.
