FACULTY FACTS AND STAFF STUFF

for week of Feb. 9-15

President Tyrrell, trustees Darwin Wales, Carl Gitlitz, Harry Prew and Bob Kelly and Marvin Behr will be in New York on Tuesday for the Board of Regents Leadership Conference on Higher Education.

Dean Durst will be in Washington, D.C. on Saturday for "Undergraduate Educators in Science" project directors meeting.

Floyd West, delegate to the 1969 meeting of the New York State Teachers Retirement System, has some literature which he feels will be of interest to STRS members. The literature is in a folder at the main desk of the library, where it is available to anyone wishing to see it. It cannot be removed from the library, however.

Alice Gray is one of 10 people in the nation asked to attend a meeting called by the United States Public Health Service (USPHS) in New York City on Tuesday and Wednesday. Primary purpose of the meeting is to discuss and establish minimum legal qualifications for radiologic technologists.

Dr. Henri Lewin reports that two of his German students, Pamela Pavelonis and Mary Rose Kovach, have been accepted in a student work program in Germany this summer. They will work for IBM and live with a German family. Dr. Lewin is also looking into the possibilities of affiliating a Broome Tech French honor society with the national organization for two-year colleges. His students have shown an interest in this.

Bowling beat --

Best faculty scores of the week: Jim Abbott 209 and John Kushner 206.

Wayne Evelo will take a team of students to Oswego to compete in the Association of College Unions-International, Region 2 Tournament at the SUNY College there. That's Thursday through Saturday. The students are:

Tom Ellison (BT-70), Joe Corby (EH-70), Tom MacBeth (LA-70), Tom Kelley (MT-71) and Mike Badera (LA-71).

Supplement to a supplement:

Shortly after we had distributed the supplement to the Faculty-Staff Directory last week, we learned that there were a couple of changes. David Campbell is now married and his wife's name is Mary Louise. Mrs. Schaefer of the Bio-Med office staff has resigned.

Student terminations:

Deborah Ferguson (PT-72)	Agnes Reistetter (RN-71)
Marilyn Lannon (LA-71)	David Martin (LA-70)
Steven Post (MT-71)	Michael Babuka (CH-71)
Kathy Ellis (MT-71)	Rosanna Stinavage (LA-70)

Dr. John Clark would like to know of any faculty members interested in participating in a team teaching effort for a special course on medical emergency training to be given here this spring. The course is designed for professional and volunteer ambulance drivers, as well as fire and police personnel. In short, anyone whose work is liable to require a knowledge of medical emergency training in excess of first aid.

The course is planned at the request of the New York State Public Health Department, and will meet one evening a week for three hours for 12 weeks. Area physicians and other medical personnel will be part of the team teaching line-up.

A REMINDER: RDP COURSES ARE FREE FOR FACULTY AND STAFF

The Resource Development Programs (RDP) start next week (Feb. 17) and Pete Everett reminds faculty and staffers that they can register for any of the 25 courses without charge. There are already 7 faculty and 11 staff registrations. One of the two sections of "Supervising People" has already been filled.

Direct any queries to Pete Everett.

BEHR FACTS

Four new names have been added in the past week to the list of faculty and staffers who have quit smoking -- Steve Korducavich, Don Wager, Ralph Walter and Floyd West. Mrs. Zerbst will get them their IQ (I.Quit) pins or buttons, and we'd like to hear from anyone else who has kicked the habit.

Pollution really gets around, as this story recently brought to my attention indicates:

Aboard one of the Navy's deep submersibles, 50 miles off San Diego and 2,450 feet down, Adm. I.J. Galantin, chief of naval material, peered through the porthole at the wonders of the undersea world. The first thing he spotted -- two feet away -- was a beer can.

Two Broome Tech students, Kathy Kaschak and Linda Bartlett, recently took the exam for the $2,000 International Scholarship Award of the National Secretaries Association. The exam was given here at Broome Tech, with Dot Saeger and Virginia Cropsey administering the typing and shorthand in the morning, and interviews held in the afternoon.

Then there is the television comedian who complained about making telephone calls to those companies whose operators put you on "infinity hold."
