TRAVEL FORUM STIRS UP NEW IDEAS :

Well, you missed a good one . . .but here is some of what went on thanks to William's prose -

At today's Library Service Committee Travel Forum, Aimee shared with us some of the exciting presentations she attended at the Computers in Libraries Conference in Washington D.C. in April. One of the topics she discussed was using wiki technology in libraries. Since wikis are by their very nature excellent for collaborative work, she has created one for us to experiment with here at the Library. It's called Paddock and can be accessed at paddock.pbwiki.com. The password is travel.

To see how libraries can use wikis, take a look at the Biz Wiki at Ohio University Library.

Aimee created Paddock especially for us to play around in. It's not visible to the outside public. So, please give it a visit, poke around, and have some fun. Let's see what we all can create together.

We may have a special Library Service Committee program in the Fall to see how the Wiki experiment is going and where we can go with it in the future.

Thanks to Aimee, John, Elaine and Susan K for participating in today's Travel Forum, and to everyone who came to see the presentations .

And don't forget to check the share folder on TRAVEL to read all reports of staff travel!
