

Forbidden Love

Wanting...
Feeling and believing...
That my life was meant to be shared with you...
The hands of time move slowly over the horizon...
As I wait for the day we can be together...
Desiring nothing more...
Than the touch of your skin...
And for your hair to run through the fingertips...
That hold tight to the love you feel for me...
The shadow of your soul...
Fades...
As the day begins to break...
I have seen the shadows of the moon...
Make love to the night...
And the sun grace the day...
When the wind begins to sing...
As the summer turns into the fall...
I still wait to hear your call...
I stay close to your side...
Where the horizon meets the ocean's tides...
My love runs deeper...
Than the hearts of those...
Who ride on the waves to seek you...
I whisper my thoughts and feelings...
Into the cold night air...
As we lay and watch the stars...
They shine down upon us...
Under the same sky...
The atmosphere is filled with the passion...
That connects our beings as one...
Our hearts share the same beat...
And I ask you...
When I will be able to breathe again...
Tonight will be the same as all the other nights...
I have spent...
Open off my love...
For you water the spiritual garden...
Where my love for you flourishes...
Let the rain fall down upon my face...
To wash away the tears...
I have shed every time I envision...
The harsh reality we live in...
That does not allow us to share our love...
Or even accept this innocent embrace...
Where you stand alone,
Please take the hand that reaches out for you...
And with all this love I offer you...
I promise we will surpass...
The secrets we are bound to.
